TOURISTS FIGHT YELLOWSTONE PARK FLOOD

FIRE RAGING IN EL MONTE THREATENS ALL CITY

Business Section Already Gutted by Blaze This Afternoon

BULLETIN

EL MONTE, July 25.—Overcome by terrific heat, firemen here at 3 o'clock this afternoon gave up hopes of saving the business section of this city and appeals were sent to neighboring towns for aid.

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Fire which started in the basement of a department store at El Monte, 14 miles from here, this afternoon was sweeping through the main part of town, and is yet not under control.

Hopes of saving the Southern Counties Savings bank were reported given up.

Later reports stated the Rialto theatre building was afire and that the First National bank building is imperiled by the flames.

No estimate of the damage could be made, but it is expected to amount to thousands of dollars. Efforts are being made to keep the flames from spreading to the residence section.

Two Women Perish In Asheville Flames

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 25.—Two women clerks are believed to have lost their lives in a fire which late today was threatening the business section of the city. Unable to penetrate the building, firemen prepared to dynamite.

One of the missing women was seen to come to the window and look out. Then she was lost to view.

The Emporium building, valued at $150,000, is doomed. Its stock, also valued at $150,000 is a total loss.

The buildings threatened are valued at more than $1,000,000.

The fire was said to be the most disastrous the city has had in twenty-five years.

Oesterreich's Widow Faces Murder Charge

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Charged with slaying her husband, Fred Oesterreich, wealthy Milwaukee clothing manufacturer, Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich appeared before Justice Baird today for preliminary hearing on a murder charge.

Because the entire case is veiled in mystery, which the prosecution claims will soon be wiped away, the hearing attracted hundreds of persons who stormed the court room for admittance.

Fred Oesterreich was shot and killed on the night of August 22 1922, at his North Andrew boulevard home after he and his wife had returned from an evening out. At the time of the shooting it was blamed on burglars.

Retention of Wood Is Detriment, Is Claim

MANILA, July 25.—The Philippine independence commission, following a stormy session, reached almost unanimous agreement upon a resolution declaring retention of Governor-General Leonard Wood as governor-general "constitutes a grave detriment to public welfare." One Democrat cast a dissenting vote.

Senator Guingon and Representatives Aunario and Acuna are the latest appointive members of the legislative to resign. Others from the provinces are expected to follow suit.

BIG BARGAINS DOLLAR DAY

Merchants Make Many Price Reductions

MARK up a red letter merchandising day for Glendale tomorrow!

Thursday is Dollar Day, an event that promises to make history.

Many bargains are advertised in The Glendale Evening News today telling of the wonderful values. You should read the merchants' announcements.

Generous savings in all lines may be effected, the prices indicate, while innumerable articles worth two and three times the value are marked down to a dollar for quick clearance.

Dollar Day affords many establishments the opportunity every few months of clearing out odd stocks at ridiculously low prices while in other cases the dollar serves as an introductory offer on some new line of goods.

If you will glance through the pages of advertising, however, it will be noted that combinations, such as four 40 cent values for a dollar, will enable one to obtain a miscellaneous array of necessities at rock bottom prices.

Practically all of the stores in Glendale are co-operating in this effort to make July 26 the biggest day in the summer season. So warm up to the idea, folks.

Grasp the opportunity. Invest your dollars wisely and save money.

STRIKES TIE UP OCEAN LINERS

Eight Vessels Tied to Piers As Workers Threaten to Halt Shipping

NEW YORK, July 25.—With eight giant ocean liners tied up in Hoboken and members of the marine transport workers, I. W. W. branch, threatening to stop all shipping in New York harbor, officials of the International Longshoremen's association today exerted every effort to force rebel strikers within their ranks to return to work.

It was estimated 1000 I. W. W. longshoremen and 1200 regular union men are now involved in the Hoboken strike.

Lines affected by the strike are The United States lines, Munson line, Cosmo line, Ellman line, Holland-American line, North German-Lloyd line and the Wilson line.

The strike, union chiefs said, was prompted by agitators who recently arrived from San Francisco, where an I. W. W. strike is in progress.

Stevedores Ask Raise

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—What was declared to be an unauthorized strike, was reported today to affect 200 stevedores and warehousemen employed in loading grain ships at Port Costa and Islais creek terminals. The men were demanding a raise from 80 cents an hour to $1 for their labor, reports said.

According to George McNulty, secretary, the riggers' and stevedores' unions are meeting in Bellingham to discuss wage demands and probably will ask the 20-cent increase, refusal of which may precipitate a general strike along the Pacific coast.

Rioting Breaks Out

LONDON, July 25.—Rioting broke out in the dock strike today when 5000 strikers attacked meat trucks to prevent them from unloading. Mounted police restored order.

Three hundred strikers resumed work at Tilbury.

Many strikers went back to work at Hull.

U. S.-Turk Envoys in Parley at Lausanne

LAUSANNE, July 25.—Intensive negotiations were under way here today betwen the Turks and Americans. Joseph C. Grew, American minister to Switzerland, and chief of the American observers at the Near East peace conference, consulted with the Turks until 2 o'clock this morning. The Americans suggested that the negotiations be adjourned to meet in some other city, away from the effects of the Near East peace conference, which terminated here yesterday in the signing of the Turkish peace treaty. All the other peace delegates except the Turks and Americans have left Lausanne.

Harding Goes Fishing; Next Come Speeches

ABOARD U. S. S. HENDERSON WITH PRESIDENT HARDING EN ROUTE to Vancouver, B. C., July 25.—President Harding went fishing today.

The opportunity was afforded by the excellent time the Henderson made from Alaskan waters and the fact that it was unnecessary to arrive in Vancouver, B. C., before the scheduled time of 11 a. m. Thursday.

The Henderson anchored during the night in Alert bay, moving through Seymour narrows early this morning and thence anchoring off the Campbell river, eighty miles from Vancouver, which is said to be the finest fishing grounds in Canada.

Tomorrow sees the president back at his grind of daily speech-making and receptions for nearly two weeks. From Vancouver, Thursday, and Seattle Friday, he will have no opportunity for rest until he re-sails on the Henderson from San Diego August 6.

Take Out License and Plan To Wed Late Today, Friends Say

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—A marriage license was issued here today to James C. Kirkwood, noted actor, and Augusta Appel, known in public life as Lila Lee, film actress. Kirkwood gave his age as 40 years and Miss Appel as 18. Kirkwood also stated he had been married twice before, but obtained a divorce in each instance. The actress' father lives in Chicago. Four months ago Miss Lee denied emphatically she was engaged to Kirkwood. Friends say they will be married this afternoon.

One Killed, Two Shot In Georgia Dry War

LONDON, July 25.—Many persons have been killed and more than 100 wounded in a renewal of communist rioting at Frankfort, Germany, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Star today. Many shops were damaged.

REFUSES JOB AS COOK ON IDALIA

W. C. Waring Quits Position In Time to Escape Fire On Racing Yacht

Had W. C. Waring, one of the partners of the Army & Navy store, 201 South Brand boulevard, liked to cook, he might have found himself aboard the ill-fated yacht Idalia, when she caught fire at 1 o'clock Sunday morning, July 22, 116 miles off the coast of Santa Barbara, on the way to Honolulu, as one of five craft entered in the fourth annual racing regatta to the Hawaiian Islands and back.

Mr. Waring got aboard the Idalia by a stroke of luck—and got off the same way. He had planned to make the cruise from San Pedro to Santa Barbara on another yacht, reports Ralph Miles of the Army & Navy store, and reported at the pier last Wednesday afternoon July 18, but he must have missed connections, for, after standing around with his dufflebag most of the afternoon, with no visible signs of any transportation, he was about to return to Glendale—when along hove the Idalia.

Galley Slave Balks

The result was that he hastily shipped a passage as one of her crew of seven, little dreaming that Captain Ayers was planning to utilize his talents in the chow department. When the revelation came, with the preparation of mess that night, and Mr. Waring saw that instead of being a jolly tar, his lot was cast as a galley slave, he resolved that when the Idalia arrived in Santa Barbara on Friday, it would thenceforth dispense with his services.

The result was that he came back to Glendale by train, and the trim yacht headed out for Honolulu Saturday morning with a new lord of the stew-pans.

When in the Monday papers Mr. Waring read of the disaster that had overtaken this handsome yacht, he decided he must have had a hunch, somehow, that he would do better to confine his cooking activities to terra firma, and as a result he and Mrs. Waring are now at Big Bear lake on a two weeks' camping trip.

Crew Badly Burned

Three of the crew of the Idalia were seriously burned as a result of the fire, but she managed to limp back to port without loss of life. Since then the Poinsettia, another crack yacht of the five that entered upon the regatta, has been forced to abandon the cruise and turn howeward, her sails torn to ribbons by a sudden blow.

The three remaining yachts are reported proceeding safely on their course.

WELCOME HERO

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—This city today is extending a sentimental welcome to General Henri Joseph Gouraud, "hero of the Champagne," who at one time during the early days of the American participation in the conflict commanded the rainbow division of Americans.

SLEEVES AND CORSETS IN ASH CAN

National Fashion Show in New York Tells What Women Will Wear

By JACK CARBERRY
For International News Service

NEW YORK, July 25.—Arms and the woman is the burning question here today.

"Yes, we have no sleeves," is the national anthem of exhibitors at Fashion's shrine, the 1923 National Merchandise Fair and Fashion show, being attended by thousands of buyers from all over the country.

For, despite the Paris decree that sleeves shall be longer—covering the hands, in fact—buyers insist women demand the sleeveless gown.

"Manufacturers must combine comfort with style," Henry Blume, representing one of New York's largest dress houses, explains.

"Fall fashions prove that," George A. Wortham, head salesman for America's greatest corset house, adds.

Women Do Dictating

"Fashion cannot longer dictate to women—they dictate to us," Paul Berkeley, representing an international stock concern, verifies.

"And no longer can New York women boast they are the best dressed in the world," all three agree. "Main street in Houston, Texas; Petticoat Lane in Kansas City; Sixteenth street in Denver, and Market street in San Francisco are all sending their buyers to Paris now—they're getting their styles as quickly as New York."

So from coast to coast styles will show:

Brown in its various shades the prevailing color, with "Havanas" and "cigarettes" predominating.

Dresses—Both sleeveless for comfort and hiding the hands for style, will be bodiced and will extend to within five inches of the ground.

Where Are Corsets?

Corsets are gone forever, despite Miss Alice Robinson of Oklahoma. In their place has come the "cling around" now exclusive product of most corset houses. It is a boned back and front garment, with elastic sides and waist high.

The red, green and blue shoes of the summer can be given to the ash man. Brown with brown hose will be the rule for all but evening wear.

Only one new color has come from Paris for party dresses and evening gowns—"the balsamine." It is a cross between peach and coral, and is mostly adapted to the velvets.

The cloak and wrap just isn't. Coats, skirt length and heavy, will be the rule, with fur extensively used.

For the men—they'll still wear trousers and coats.

LATEST NEWS

DRY LAW DECISION IS HELD UP

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Physicians will be compelled to endure the Volstead law curbing the frequency of liquor prescriptions for six months longer at least as the supreme court probably will not pass finally upon the question before the beginning of another year, officials of the department of justice said today.

FARMERS BATTLE FOREST FIRES

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 25.—Hundrds of farmers and occupants of hunting lodges in the Gretna section, 150 miles from here, turned out today in an effort to check the spread of forest fires which has swept over fifteen miles of territory, causing thousands of dollars' damage. A. Sheridan, a New York broker, his two daughters, occupants of a hunting lodge near Jenkins, had a narrow escape from death.

STEEL MEN TO DISCUSS 12-HOUR DAY

NEW YORK, July 25.—Presidents of the subsidiary companies of the United States Steel Corporation will meet here tomorrow to discuss elimination of the 12-hour day, Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the corporation announced today. The meeting, it was stated, will be held in Gary's office and ways and means for putting the employes of the steel plants on eight-hour instead of twelve-hour shifts will be talked over. Gary said that it was the desire of the corporation to proceed as vigorously as possible in putting the plants on an eight-hour basis.

Professor Bingo Raids Chicago Food And Liquor Supply; Goodnight Nurse!

CHICAGO, July 25.—Professor Henry R. Bingo wasn't satisfied to poison himself with common saloon liquor. He had to go out of his way to find venom. With both hands on his aching stomach, he told from his hospital bed today how it all happened.

The professor was in a none too elegant beer saloon when he remarked that he was so hungry he could eat a raw dog. He craved nine or ten pounds of nourishment.

"You can't eat that much," sniffed a tippler.

"Bet you ten meg I can," the daring eater said.

Some one covered his ten and the professor, keeping tab on his fingers, said:

"Gentlemen, I shall eat seven pounds of boneless herring. I shall devour twenty-four hot dogs. Six tins of sardines will I absorb. Then, gentlemen, to show you what a push-over it is, I'll quaff twenty glasses of brew without so much as a tremor."

The professor swallowed herring until it looked as if reserves would have to be called out of the North sea.

"Check," said he, tackling the dogs. The bartender scratched off herring. "Check!" said Bingo. "The dogs were gone. And again, "check!" gurgled the professor, Gone, too, the sardines.

"Fill them up," said the professor. On the eleventh goblet of brew, the professor pitched over on the bar room floor with a dull thud. An ambulance carted him to the hospital. There he was pumped out.

It was found that tricksters had put oil of mustard in his eleventh glass.

"It was a dirty, dirty trick," Bingo groaned and impatiently added:

"Nurse, when do I eat?"

New Income Tax Ruling Affects Many Persons

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Abont 230,000 persons in Southern California are affected by a new ruling of the income tax law, which makes gifts or contributions deductible from the returns, it was announced today by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodcell.

The new ruling, which was received here from Commissioner Blair at Washington, provides that contributions or gifts are deductible to an amount not in excess of fifteen per cent of the taxpayer's net income.

There should be stated on returns of income the name and address of each party to whom the gift was made and the date and the amount.

Real estate given to a city for a park is deductible under the new ruling.

JOHNSON TO LAUNCH WAR ON COURT

California Senator to Open Fight on President's Project Tonight

NEW YORK, July 25.—A vigorous broadside against the world court plan is expected tonight from Senator Hiram Johnson of California in his address at a dinner in his honor. It is understood he will speak of the dangers to the United States if it should be ensnared in the web of foreign intrigue.

The California senator completed his speech early today and spent most of the day resting in his suite at a hotel. He planned to go motoring this afternoon. Rhinelander Waldo, in charge of the dinner arrangements, is being overwhelmed with a last-minute rush for tickets. Already 800 have been sold, while 250 spectators will occupy boxes.

It is pointed out that such a large crowd at a dinner at this time of the year is unusual.

Grill Man Who Wrote Threat to Film Star

MARTINEZ, Cal., July 25. — A rigid questioning was planned by the authorities today of a man who gave his name as Albert H. Sans, arrested last night at Bay Point as the author of two letters received by an Oakland detective agency threatening the lives of Mack Sennett, motion picture producer, and Mabel Normand, screen star.

According to the arresting officers Sans admitted writing the letters in which he declared himself to be the slayer of William Desmond Taylor, murdered Hollywood motion picture director.

Sans is believed to be mentally deranged and probably will face a sanity inquiry.

PAYMENT OF WAR DEBT OPPOSED

French Will Cut Reparations Demand If Allies Will Wipe Slate Clean

PARIS, July 25.—Premier Poincare is opposed to any specific date for paying the French war debt to the United States even if it is put ten or fifteen years ahead, it was learned today from semi-official sources.

The premier is willing to consider war debts and German reparations together and will consent to a reduction of German indemnity to 40,000,000,000 gold marks if Great Britain and America will at once annul all debts owing to them by France. Otherwise, it is understood, he will insist upon the full claim of 132,000,000,000 gold marks.

Franco-Belgian diplomatic negotiations for the purpose of solidity in reply to the British reparations note are continuing in diplomatic channels. There are two principal differences of opinion:

Belgium's Stand

First—Belgium wishes to make concessions to the British view point and discuss a reduction of the German debt.

Second—Belgium is willing to have an international commission appointed to examine Germany's capacity for payment.

France is opposed to both these suggestions. So far France has stubbornly maintained in all negotiations with Brussels that the Paris government will not budge from the original demands (including 132,000,000,000 gold marks indemnity) unless the treaty of Versailles is agreed upon.

Loss in Coote Crash May Total $7,000,000

LOS ANGELES, July 25—With the losses of A. W. Coote, local broker, who crashed six weeks ago when the New York firm of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne failed, expected to aggregate from between $5.000,000 to $7,000,000, an official probe of Coote's business transactions was scheduled to be started today by W. H. Moore, Jr., receiver. However, Moore stated the interrogation of Coote, who returned here yesterday from New York, and the investigation of his affairs may be delayed until several phases of the financier's dealings may be clarified and a firmer basis for his questioning established.

Coote's investing clients are said to number more than 4000 persons. Many of his clients are said to have lost sums ranging from $50.000 to $150,000. One Anaheim business man is said to have lost $60,000, and Coote's failure is said to have caused others to go bankrupt.

An interesting feature in Coote's career as a broker is that he started in 1912 with a capital of but $500 and enhanced his business in ten years to such a staggering sum.

TONS OF ROCK AND DEBRIS SWEEP ON NATIONAL RESERVE

Three Cloudbursts Cause Property Damage of Several Millions

CODY, Wyo., July 25.—The beautiful entrance to Yellowstone park through the Shoshone valley is today strewn with debris and wreckage as a result of the worst flood in the history of the United States forestry survey. Three cloudbursts scattered over an interval of six hours swept down the mountain passes carrying tons of rock, and dirt, cutting off from the outside world 400 tourists and completely demoralizing all forms of communication.

Ranger stations, summer resorts, lodges and other buildings were swept into flooded rivers. Canyon creek moved westward a quarter of a mile and formed a new channel.

Absaroka Lodge, Dude resort, is reported filled with debris and trees thirty-five feet deep. Mud three feet deep from the overflow of Grinnel creek covers the road for miles.

Tourists at Work

Boulders, trees and wreckage of all description was strewn over an area of more than half a mile when Clock Tower creek went over its bank.

Hundreds of marooned tourists worked feverishly with forestry service men in throwing temporary bridges across the flooded streams, and this morning had succeeded in making a passable road from the park to this city.

Shoshone dam reservoir is black with a mass of wreckage washed down by the flood of waters.

At Sanders, on the Northern Pacific and Wyola, on the Burlington, cloudbursts halted all traffic from the east into Billings. One thousand feet of track is washed out and trains are held up indefinitely at Forsyth.

Damage in Millions

Cloudbursts and floods at Rock Springs and Point of Rocks are menacing the tracks but as yet no serious breaks or tie-ups have occurred. Damage to the Burlington tracks between Arminto and Thermopolis, a stretch of eighty miles, is estimated at $750,000.

Damage at Thermopolis and vicinity is estimated at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. No loss of life has been reported, but many ranchers and families had narrow escape. Damage may run higher when communication is again established with points now cut off.

'Poison Pen' Charges Dismissed by Court

NEW YORK, July 25.—The indictments against George Maxwell, president of the Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, charging him with forgery and sending "poison pen" letters to Allan A. Ryan, the financier, were dismissed today.

In setting aside the indictments Assistant District Attorney William R. Maloney had submitted a brief yesterday, mentioning the names of seven women with whom he alleged Maxwell had "affairs."

The motion to dismiss the indictments had been made by Maxwell's attorneys following an inspection of the grand jury minutes.

Firemen Save Guests From Burning Hotel

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., July 25.—Firemen took thirteen guests to safety here early today when fire for a time threatened to destroy the Savoy hotel. Miss Sarah Savis, 26, lame from a recent motor accident, hobbled down two flights of stairs unaided, then was overcome. The damage was moderate.

Surprise Honoree

Miss Helen Appleton, whose marriage to Richard Grauel will take place August 1, was complimented with a surprise shower on Tuesday afternoon by Miss Lillian Criswell, assisted by Miss Edith Wells and Miss Hazel Jaquiss.

The guests arrived at 3:30 o'clock at the Appleton home, 721 East Windsor road, and were most successful in surprising the honoree, although Mrs. Appleton was in the secret.

Sweet peas and baby breath were used in decorating the rooms most attractively.

The nimble fingers of the guests were employed during the afternoon embroidering a set of stamped holders and hemming dusters.

A novel entertainment was provided when each guest was given an advertisement page from a magazine and requested to write a love letter to the prospective bride or groom, from the words found in the advertisement. The results were extremely clever and amusing.

The bride was presented with a beautiful Japanese umbrella by her mother and handed a suitcase to start on her journey and requested to open the suitcase and show what she was taking with her. Complying Miss Appleton found many beautiful and useful gifts.

Tiny flower pots with fluted cases of chocolate ice cream decorated with sweetpeas, and French pastries were served by the hostesses.

Those invited to honor iMss Appleton were Miss Nina Richards, Miss Mildred Brenner, Miss Alice Raw, Mrs. Elmer S. Smith, Mrs. Greenbaum, Mrs. Robert Taylor, Miss Ruth Gray and Miss Ruth Whyte, the last two being the bridesmaids chosen by Miss Appleton, all of Los Angeles, Miss Lillian Criswell, Miss Edith Wells, Miss Hazel Jaquiss and Mrs. F. G. Appleton of Glendale.

Later in the evening the party motored to Venice and Ocean Park where an enjoyable hour was spent, before returning home.

Miss Marie Oliver was chairman of the arrangement committee and J. Cunningham chaperoned the thirty-six young people who enjoyed the affair.

Dainty pink and white favors and bon-bon baskets filled with candies marked the little guests' places. A beautiful white birthday cake artistically decorated with tiny pink candy roses and lighted with nine pink candles proved the center of attraction.

Vacation Outing

Miss Elsie M. Jensen of 341 Myrtle street, returned Friday from a two weeks' outing spent in the High Sierras. She reports a wonderful trip. Leaving Glendale in company with Mrs. Chas. Woodruff, of Hollywood, they proceeded by train to Visalia where they joined Visalia friends and, outfitted with horses and pack animals, left for Mineral King, an old mining camp.

With Mineral King as headquarters they made many side trips, often being in the saddle five to seven hours a day. Often their excursions took them through the snow even at this season.

They found the fishing very good in Cliff creek and in both the upper and lower Monarch Lakes.

A. A. BAINES IS FREED BY JURY

Not Guilty of Violations of Liquor Ordinances, Is Verdict

A. Baines, shoemaker, of 312 East Broadway, was found not guilty by a jury in Judge F. H. Lowe's police court yesterday as charged, in two violations of the city's liquor ordinance being alleged. J. W. Wilson, who was the star witness for the prosecution, admitted on the stand he had been arrested for alleged violations of the liquor laws, and that he had lost his electrician's job for intemperance. Two other witnesses denied they had purchased liquor from Baines, although the attorneys endeavored to force admission that they had informed the police that such was the case. All told six witnesses, including Police Chief J. D. Fraser and Detective Sergeant W. J. Royl, were used by the prosecution and three for the defense, exclusive of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Baines.

Soon Reach Verdict

The jury considered the testimony for twenty minutes and returned with the verdict of acquittal, much to the gratification of Attorneys O. V. Wilson and R. A. Ramey, who represented Mr. Baines. The latter's vindication was featured by his consignment to the officers of the court his private stock of liquor which was seized. This, he testified, was acquired in his home prior to the Glendale ordinance becoming effective.

Following are the names of members of the jury: Bertram A. Young, Mrs. Lena Roberts, Frank J. Marshall, Gladys J. Martin, Everett Masters, Paul Mason, Mrs. Blanche S. Litchfield, John A. Legge, Roderick E. Nern, Walter Parsonage, Myron R. Lowe and Orville Painter.

Net Stars Must File Names For Tournament Before Saturday, August 4

The tennis tournament, under the auspices of the local Community Service organization, is now far enough advanced to warrant receiving entries, states William G. Bode, chairman of the committee in charge, who reports that all entries close August 4 and active play starts about August 8.

BOY SCOUTS CAMPING AT ARROWHEAD

Visitors Relate Activities of Glendale Troops at Camp Royl-Kent

The Boy Scouts of the Verdugo hills, including members of troops from La Crescenta, Tujunga, Eagle Rock and Glendale, are now in camp at Camp Royl-Kent at Arrowhead lake, for a ten days' camping trip. The boys left Saturday morning under the care of Scout Executive Harold Benner of Glendale, assisted by Walter Westcott, "Uncle" Robert Taylor of Glendale, A. C. Cox of La Crescenta and Dr. Harry Crawford of Eagle Rock.

An interesting report has been received from A. C. Cox relative to the boys' camp and their activities. He states they found an ideal camp surrounded by large pines, running streams of ice cold water, and, best of all, loads of good "eats."

On arriving at camp Saturday night, Dr. Crawford conducted the campfire with Walter Westcott taking charge of the music and singing, which certainly had some "pep."

Sunday Services

Sunday noon services were conducted by Dr. Crawford and at the campfire in the evening an interesting story was told by Harold Benner, chief scout, about the mountain lion, keeping everyone in suspense to the last minute.

The week's program as planned included swimming and boating on Lake Arrowhead, two days for tests, a treasure hunt, and a visit to the mine.

The scouts entertained, as their special guests over the week-end, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Crawford of Eagle Rock and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cox of La Crescenta. Mr. Cox will remain with the boys at camp during the full ten days.

DECLARES TAXES KILL ENTERPRISE

Sound Economics Shows Way Out of Industrial Troubles, Claim

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 25.—"If we should run our business the way we run our government we would soon be giving Lenin and Trotzky lessons in applied folly," declared J. A. Shields, Indianapolis, president of the Indiana Manufacturers' Association, addressing a local audience.

"The tendency toward socialistic and class legislation by blocs and leagues is like putting a very small plaster on a very large sore—it not only proves abortive, but also aggravates the evil," he declared.

"We cannot solve a 1923 problem with a 1908 model thinking apparatus. We should clearly understand that the way out of our agricultural and industrial difficulties lies through sound economics and not through politics.

"In the same period the expenses of state government have increased 400 per cent, and those of municipal government 500 per cent, all resulting largely from the exercise of functions by government agencies that are not properly within the scope of essential public activities.

"We are as blind as the three blind mice on taxation. Business prospers, but our tax laws do much to stifle enterprise. The first step in tax reform is to spend less money, instead of looking for new revenues through which to raise more. We need to understand that permanent remedies cannot be obtained through selfish class legislation that does violence to the first principles of political economy. We need less government in business and more business in government."

CROOKED BERLIN OFFICERS JAILED

Tried to Swindle American Sailor; Term at Hard Labor Is Sentence

BREMEN, Germany, July 25.—Former Police Sergeants Hinrichs and Assen today are bemoaning the fact that when they picked out Joe Unadkay, cook on an American tramp steamer, as a likely hold-up prospect they picked the wrong man.

To be sure, Hinrichs and Assen got forty dollars in precious American money from Unadkay, but they didn't keep it long. Unadkay went straight to police headquarters and reported that he had been held up by two policemen in uniform. The next morning the entire night force was lined up and Unadkay picked out the unfortunate pair.

Hinrichs and Assen will have plenty of time to regret their lack of judgment, for the former was sentenced to five years at hard labor, the latter to three years in jail.

Honolulu, Hawaii, has 90,000 population.

RUSSIA TO SHIP GRAIN, IS CLAIM

Will Recover Pre-War Place As Sources of Supply Declares Krassin

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, July 25.—"Within the next few years Russia unquestionably will recover her pre-war position in the world market as a source of supply of grain, agricultural products and raw material."

Leonid Krassin, foreign trade commissar of soviet Russia, makes this confident and bold prediction.

"It must not be forgotten," Krassin said, "that Russia emerged from a state of war three years later than any other European country, and that during the European war she bore much heavier sacrifices, both economically and in loss of life."

Krassin then pointed out that the total value of Russia's exports has increased from $10,000,000 in 1921 to $40,000,000 in 1922. He stated that the anticipated value of exports in 1923 will be approximately $200,000,000, an increase of 400 per cent per annum.

Soviet Rebuilding

"The soviet government is making heroic efforts to rebuild transport and heavy industry," Krassin said. "The task is somewhat difficult, as the destruction and exhaustion of big factories and works, as well as the expense involved, are more considerable than in the middle and light industries. Nevertheless, the great majority of branches have succeeded in maintaining their basic equipment in a more or less satisfactory state.

"Notwithstanding all difficult conditions and the havoc of the civil war, the railways are slowly but ceaselessly increasing their efficiency, and the number of cars furnished every day for loading and unloading at a given place surpasses the maximum figures of the last five years.

Slowly Recovering

"The textile and chemical industries are producing one-third of their pre-war figures.

"The position is somewhat worse in the coal mining industry, where the equipment was exhausted before the revolution, especially the boilers, and where it was difficult to secure the power required.

"The oil industry at Baku is yielding already 50 per cent and in Grosny even 80 per cent of the pre-war figures. Poland and Rumania, who experienced neither blockade nor intervention and who, on the contrary, have received and are receiving foreign help in the form of loans, can hardly boast of the better state of their oil industries.

"On the whole we see, therefore, a slow but progressive reconstruction of Russian economic life.

KARR WILL TELL OF ROTARY MEET

But Convention Entertainment Failed to Lessen Heat in St. Louis

Glendale Rotarians tomorrow noon, in the banquet room of the Citizens' building, 152 South Brand boulevard, will have an informal report from George B. Karr of 1150 North Louise street upon the recent international Rotary convention at St. Louis.

"The convention was simply wonderful!" exclaimed Mr. Karr enthusiastically this morning. "We had a dandy crowd and a keen entertainment. Oh boy, it was hot! They made the entertainment very elaborate and delightful and all that but they could not change the weather.

"I think the outstanding feature of the convention was the foreign representation. Twenty-two countries were represented out of the twenty-nine that belong. Rotary works fine in a community and in a district and, as President Harding said in his speech, when Rotary is known internationally it will help to lessen wars.

Following the convention, Mr. Karr returned to Pomona, Kan., for a visit. "Kansas is more prosperous now than it was six months ago," he remarked. "The railroad trouble they were having then is over now. They have had just a little bit too much rain for good crops. I never did see the country so green and beautiful."

FORMER SOLDIER LOSES WARDROBE

Attempt to Collect France's Debt From Shopkeeper Fails of Effect

PARIS, July 25.—All dressed up and no place to go—except the police station—was the sad fate of a tall, fine-looking negro from Senegal who walked into one of the large Paris shops last week and decked himself in borrowed plumes.

He first found his way to the tailoring department and selected a light gray suit, which he put on at once. Passing to the other departments he provided himself with a tall silk hat, silk socks, patent-leather shoes, bright yellow gloves and a gaudy necktie.

In the jewelry section he put on a gold watch and chain, a scarf pin, cuff buttons and a fine fountain pen. When finally arrayed to eclipse Siki himself, he was invited to the pay desk to pay the bill of 2,895 francs.

"Wrap up my old clothes," he urged, "and I'll pay the bill afterwards."

Pressed further, he admitted that he had no money and an inspector hurried him off to the police.

"I fought hard during the war", he whimpered in his cell, "and France owes me something. I am sick and want to go back home in clean clothes."

On being promised a good meal he consented to take off his fine feathers.

DROPS HUBBY FOR HER ART

Fails To Appreciate Wife's Ability, Is Claim

CARMEL MYERS
Motion Picture Star, Who Secures Divorce From Lawyer Husband.

NEW YORK, July 25.—When a husband interferes with art, cut out the husband.

That seems to be the motto of Carmel Myers, motion picture actress, whose name in private life happened to be Mrs. Isadore Kornblum.

For Mrs. Kornblum no longer is Mrs. Kornblum. A divorce has taken care of that.

It is understood that Kornblum, who is a lawyer, couldn't appreciate the artistic sensibilities of his wife, and she, in turn, failed to appreciate why he didn't appreciate how dear to her heart was the art of her movies.

This mutual lack of appreciation led to the divorce court, and now Carmel can pursue her artistic way untrammeled by the name of Mrs. Kornblum and unhindered by Kornblum's failure to appreciate genius.

So once more Carmel is heart whole and fancy free, and Kornblum—oh, he'll probably live through it.

Big Man Picks Little One With Big Wallop

NEW YORK, July 25.—With a large field to choose from, Charles McCarthy, 37 and a strapping specimen, selected a diminutive, gray-haired man, fellow "L" passengers said, and stepped on his toes, evidently in an attempt to start something.

He did. The argument waxed hot.

At the next station they got off and went to it.

The little man pasted the big one on the nose, and the latter kissed the board platform.

At the police station the small man grinned and said he was "Gene Gilvey." He is known to fans as a former lightweight boxer.

Deer will sometimes turn on a fox and chase him.

To Train Half-Breed Wolf to Herd Sheep

WATSON, Mont., July 25.—Whether the instincts of the father will predominate over those of the mother is a question that Henry Lingshire, manager of the Walker ranch, near here, will answer if he succeeds in training five puppies, the offspring of a wolf father and a shepherd dog mother, to become sheep dogs.

The pups were born April 12 and are now at the playful stage. They will soon be taken out among the sheep flocks for their first lesson. Should the pups prove too rough in herding sheep, Lingshire will try them as cattle dogs.

The pups are of a dark brown color, shot with with gray underneath, while the tips of the h are black. The ears stand ere like those of the wolf, and t nose is brown.

The wolf was captured by E. Warren, a government trapp and roams the ranch with t sheep dogs and has never in cated a desire to leave. A fema wolf, also captured by Warr must be fastened at all times prevent escape to the hills.

MARKETS

NEW YORK, July 25.—The stock market closed steady today. Trading in the last hour was dull and featureless. Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific were forced down 2 points, to 60, and ¾, to 62⅝, but the general list was not in the least disturbed.

Railroad and steel stocks were higher, and the rest of the list was steady, with gains ranging from a fraction to over one point.

Government bonds unchanged: railway and other bonds steady.

Stock sales today totaled 441,200 shares; bonds, $6,766,000.

In Grain Markets

CHICAGO, July 25. — Grain prices came back today with some vigor following several days of lower prices. All markets were well up at the close, compared with yesterday's list. There was a lack of influencing news, but bulls had the upper hand in the trading from the start.

A banana contains three times as much protein as an apple.

POT OF POLITICS ALREADY BOILING

New York Governor to Stump State in Campaign To Elect Democrats

ALBANY, July 25.—With the announcement by Governor Smith that he intends to stump the state this fall in the hope of having a Democratic assembly elected, Democrats at the capital are more confident than ever they will be successful at the polls a few months hence.

Indications are that the coming assembly campaign will be the hottest fought in many years. Speaker H. Edmund Machold has quietly passed along the word to the Republican leaders that he will be ready to take his place on the campaign stump this fall.

While in this city recently Speaker Machold told friends he was not worried about the prospects of a sweeping Democratic victory in the assembly fights this fall. He believes the Republicans will have an even larger majority in the 1924 assembly.

But with Governor Smith campaigning on one side and Speaker Machold on the other—not to say anything about the orators in both parties—there is sure to be "something doing" around the state within the next three months.

The five-cent fare, municipal ownership and operations of public utilities, state development and control of the state's waterpower resources, cheaper electric and gas rates and a general reorganization of the state government are expected to furnish the Democratic speakers with all sorts of campaign arguments.

If the Democrats can win seven more seats in the lower house than they had in the 1923 session they will be in complete control of the state legislature.

MORE INDICTMENTS

NEW YORK, July 25.—Two additional indictments against William H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, charging extortion, were returned by the grand jury here today.

Rich Bequests Given To Yale University

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 25.—Yale's 750 acres of land near here, which is to be turned into a great college playground, came as a gift from Mrs. Sara Wey Tompkins of Elmira, N. Y., as a memorial to her husband, the late Ray Tompkins, Yale 1884, and will be named "The Ray Tompkins Field."

Another gift, an old New England homestead at Lime Rock, on the Housatonic river, came from Miss Laura C. Barnum and William M. Barnum, Yale 1877, to be used as a resting place or convalescent home for retired members of Yale's faculty.

Both gifts were accompanied by suitable cash to develop the properties.

In addition to the realty, Yale has received more than four million dollars in cash, half for endowment and the rest for buildings.

History of Slashed Mail Sack Is Probed

SACRAMENTO, July 25.—Local police early today recovered a registered mail pouch, cut to shreds, from the American river near here. Belief was expressed by officers that the mail bag was stolen by Roy Gardner, notorious mail bandit, when he held up a train on the outskirts of this city several years ago. The bag has been dispatched to postal authorities in San Francisco.

HONK! HONK! BOULEVARD BLOCKADE

ock of Fords, Jesse Smith And Reporter Tie Up Early Traffic

ONSTERNATION and amazement reigned along limited portion of South and boulevard when a string automobiles was drawn up uarely across the wide street ortly after 7 o'clock this orning, with their hoods all inting south, as though to el an invasion of annexa- nists from Los Angeles.

Into the minds of some of se who witnessed the show- g leaped the remembrance the fight that has been aged for so long to secure wer fares over the Pacific ctric, and it was thought at the barricade of cars had en thrown across the boule- rd to halt the street cars til the conductors could one into headquarters for thority to cut the price of round trip ticket from Glen- le to Los Angeles to two s.

Color was lent to this belief en it was seen that Jesse E. ith, president of the Glendale amber of Commerce, was act- as charge d'affaires or com- nder-in-chief of the obstruc- nists and was shooing all and ndry newcomers back from the ne of the trouble.

All Wrong, Agnes

Others immediately jumped to e conclusion that it had some- ing to do with "movin' pitch- ," a natural inference every ne one sees a crowd gathered the streets of any Southern lifornia town; but this time it s wrong. The machines, fif- n Fords, in skirmishing forma- n around a big Lincoln touring r, like a squadron of destroyers otecting a dreadnought, re- ained perfectly still, and the ovin' pitcher" bet was off.

A reporter from The Glendale ening News, daring the perils the unknown, grabbed Jesse ith and wanted to know "How me you're blocking the main ag this way?" The answer was at the fleet of Fords and the ncoln were to be used to prove President Harding and his des, secretaries, cabinet mem- rs and receptiton committees nerally, that Brand boulevard fords plenty of room for the esidential party to maneuver at y kind of speed during their sit here August 3, and that ere will be all sorts of space r the Harding cars to pass, even ough the street is banked clear t to the car tracks with massed manity waiting to get a peek the president.

Just about this time Jesse Smith aved his arm in that commander- -chiefish style of his, and half block away, Ralph W. Browne gan unlimbering his camera and ckeying for position to get a od shot. The News reporter aped into the camera's range

etaliation Would Injure Europe More Than U. S. Says Dry Crusader

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
For International News Service

LONDON, July 25.—Foreign ips that enter American terri- rial waters must be "dry" when ey come in, and if the rest of e world does not like it the next ove is in its hands.

So says W. E. ("Pussyfoot") ohnson, the American evangel of rohibition, who is striving to pread the gospel of enforced to- l abstinence to the far corners f the universe. "Pussyfoot" has eturned to Europe, after several onths in America collecting new mmunition for his prohibition attle in the "unenlightened" re- ions of the Old World.

"The restrictions upon the car- ying of liquor by foreign ships n territorial waters will not be emoved," Johnson asserted.

RAISE MONEY TO ASSIST ATHLETES

British Need $100,000 to Send Men to Next Olympic Games in Paris

LONDON, July 25. — Great Britain needs more than $100,000 to insure her proper representation at the Olympic games in Paris in 1924, and Lord Birkenhead has started asking Britons what they are going to do about it.

Lord Birkenhead is chairman of the appeal committee of the British Olympic Associaton, which is in charge of the work of raising funds to train and equip the athletes who will represent England in the historic games. He and other members of the committee are greatly concerned over the possibility that lack of financial support will prevent Great Britain from being properly represented.

"The running track is a democratic road," Lord Birkenhead declared in his formal appeal for funds. "Let us see to it that no man who can do honor to England is repelled by poverty."

Birkenhead pointed out that it is the sports which are indulged in by people of modest means, such as running, jumping, wrestling, boxing and swimming, that predominate in the Olympic games. "It is of the first importance," he said, "that the poorest man in this country, if he proves in open competition his superior quality, should be able to represent Great Britain in the Olympic games unharassed by financial anxieties."

It is estimated that England will need approximately $200,000 to meet the expenses of her 1924 Olympic team. Of this sum less than half has been subscribed, and the present appeal is for an early assurance from the public that the remaining funds will be forthcoming.

Glendale Advertising Lures Ky. Merchant

The pulling power of Glendale's advertising in the recent number of the Arrowhead Magazine was shown yesterday when the vice-president of a large seed concern of Lexington, Ky., visited the Glendale Chamber of Commerce and started a series of questions designed to uncover all possible information regarding this city and business and living conditions here. The visitor, who gave the name of Ludloe, stated that he had never heard of Glendale until he picked up the Arrowhead Magazine on the Union Pacific train that brought him to the coast, but he was so impressed by the message carried by the magazine that he has already decided to remain here for the next four months while he conducts an investigation of Southland cities, before deciding where to settle permanently with his family.

Secretary E. F. Sanders took the visitor for an extended trip around the city and impressed on him the merits of Glendale from every angle.

EXPERIENCES IN ARMY SECRET SERVICE WORK

BY GIL A. COWAN

TAILING is a term used by detectives on the trail of someone who has to be shadowed, for instance, a naughty papa. In the army secret service work it was often necessary to "tail" a person to learn where they lived, having given false addresses, or moved to another place of abode.

It required two men to do a "tailing" job right, one to pace the man and the other to work a block in advance to "hop" cars, cut corners and otherwise keep an eagle eye on the procession."

These "parades" have given strenuous exercise to the best of athletes, and well does the writer remember the afternoon that Lloyd Myers, member of the firm of Twining & Myers, here, got "kicked" by a Washington street car. It nearly ended his tailing work.

Another casualty reported was that of Helpful Henry, another investigator, who collided with a car and had his foot run over by a passing automobile. Fortunately, however, Slim Gay of the New York detective force got aboard and kept the "parade" going.

Gets Through Crowd

The slim boy made quite a contrast with his helpful partner. The latter was short and stocky and of powerful physique. He could pry through a crowd while the other looked 'em over all. They seldom lost a suspect, but they did lose each other.

Henry usually led the "procession" and, working a block away from the "crowd," he would have to telephone into headquarters to find out the route. Just as soon as he got lost Slim called me by telephone and told me the direction in which they were proceeding.

And invariably we could have a squad right within fifteen minutes. Working with as many as seven men, two automobiles and several suspects on one "tailing" job, it was of tremendous importance to maintain liaison. As a result the writer had to resort to quickly drawn maps with colored pins indicating where each man could be located.

Some Complications

Telephone reports in quick rapidity brought unusual complications. One day nearly a half dozen men started centering at a certain prominent corner. Realizing the jam which likely would take place, a motor car was dispatched to overtake our men and spread them out to avoid suspicion.

One of the most humorous incidents of all tailing jobs was perpetrated by Old Nick, one of our best men. He was instructed to tip his hat if he saw the suspect heading in the direction two other operatives were working.

Lid Is Lifted

Nonchalantly standing on a street corner he allowed a passing motor car to blow his straw kelly off his head. And that spoiled the job. A hasty retreat had to be beat with a laugh at Nick's expense.

The tailing squads oftentimes obtained the most essential evidence where dictaphones, deduction and other methods of investigation failed. In one notable instance of war camp construction frauds the "connection" was revealed as the wives of two of the interested parties who were used as foils.

Only by the merest chance did one of our men take the trail of the woman who accompanied her husband-suspect to Washington. She provided the link in one of the shameful scandals involving unpatriotic profiteers.

A HOT TIP!

If you suspect the landlady or the janitor is investigating your personal affairs by going through papers left in a dresser or desk, dust a little powder or a few ashes over the correspondence. The smudge of their fingers will betray them.

But if YOU want to investigate papers without disturbing such "dust," use two hatpins or knife blades to lift them about, carefully arranging them again the way they were found, advises one experienced in secret service work.

POEM DESCRIBES HOME'S BEAUTIES

Mrs. Elsie Louise Tice Writes of City's Advantages as Home Center

Mrs. Elsie Louise Tice, 1065 Justin avenue, has written the following poem regarding the new home that she and her husband are building in Glendale, and the spirit it breathes is one of loyalty to the city and one of appreciation of the beauties of Glendale. Another poem of Mrs. Tice's, The Muzzle, was published in The Glendale Evening News about a year ago and was widely circulated throughout the country.

A HOME IN GLENDALE, THE BEAUTIFUL

We're building a home in Glendale,
A beautiful place in the West.
We'd build in no place but Glendale,
It's going to be quite a nest.

It's going to have a big front porch,
That faces the mountains so grand.
It also will have a nice back porch,
Where you see the airplanes land.

The view from every window,
Is one that can't be beat.
And of windows there'll be a plenty,
So come on and have a treat.

I wish that everybody
Who never owned a home,
Would come and take a peep at this,
Especially those who roam.

I've never been to Europe,
But folks who have been say—
"If you've ever been to Glendale,
That's the place where you will stay!"

Now, don't spend all your money;
A rolling stone don't be,
Just build a home in Glendale,
Where everyone's happy and free.
—Elsie Louise Tice.

Violin's Tone Secret Is Discovered, Belief

PARIS, July 25.—The secret of Stradivarius is believed to have been found by M. Luc Galicanne, who recently unearthed an Italian manuscript in the Bibliotheque Nationale. It is dated 1716 and undoubtedly comes from Rome. It contains the formula for the preservation of the vibrant qualities of wood.

According to the manuscript, the famous Cremona varnish has not a base of soft resin, as was always supposed. Resinous amber dissolved in olive oil was used and not the ordinary soft resins dissolved in alcohol with which modern violins are usually coated.

TAX ON CAPITAL STOCK APPROVED

U. S. Court Rules Levy Is Excise Tax on Privilege Of Doing Business

Capital stock tax levied by the revenue acts of 1916 and 1918 was upheld by the United States court in a decision received from Washington yesterday by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodcell.

The ruling holds that the capital stock tax is an excise tax on the privilege of doing business as a corporation, measured by the fair average value of the capital stock of the corporation for the preceding year.

According to the decision, the capital stock tax imposed by the 1916-1918 acts is not unconstitutional as applied to corporations, the business of which is confined to the exportation of goods from the United States and their sale in foreign countries and to the sale of goods to export commission merchants in this country with the intent and purpose that they shall be exported and with the result that such goods are, in fact, exported. Such a tax is not "a tax or duty on articles exported from any state," and hence is not violative of the constitution of the United States.

Income Tax Rating

In another important decision of the United States court received from Washington yesterday by Collector Rex Goodcell, it was held that an income tax levied under the revenue act of 1918 upon net income from the business of exporting goods from the United States and selling the goods in foreign countries is not a tax laid on articles exported from any state in violation of the constitution of the United States.

The ruling declares that an income tax levied under the revenue act of 1918 upon net income from the business of exporting goods from the United States and selling them in foreign countries does not deprive the taxpayer of his property without due process of law in violation of the fifth amendment to the constitution of the United States, even though the act be construed as exempting from the tax the income of foreign corporations from like sources; nor does such a tax violate the rule of uniformity.

BATTLE FIRE IN FOREST RESERVE

Extra Men Rushed to Scene Of Disaster to Check Sweep of Flames

The forest fire that has been raging in the Angeles National forest reserve, near the Ridge route, north of Newhall, is reported to be burning with increased fury, and in addition to the 200 fire-fighters now on the scene, 100 extra men have been thrown in to stem the tide, reports Chief Forester Flintham.

While the great blaze still shows little sign of abatement, it is believed that the hundreds of desperately toiling men, together with fire-fighting equipment from surrounding points, are slowly getting it under control.

Ranches in Danger

Many ranches and cabins are in the path of the flames, it is learned, and will be swallowed up unless the fiery tide soon turns. The direction of advance is eastward, and Flintham reports that unless it can be checked promptly, it may take a week or more to place it under control, owing to the fact that the flames are spreading to territory which is practically inaccessible.

All available burros have been transported to the fire zone, where they are being used to transport chemicals and other equipment to points where lack of roads prohibit the utilization of automobiles.

Although the area already laid waste cannot as yet be accurately determined, it is certain that many thousands of acres of timberland and brush have been destroyed. In addition to the actual fire loss, which, measured in dollars and cents, is large, the aftermath of flood and erosion to which it subjects not only the burned-over territory, but adjacent property for miles around, make this blaze in the Angeles National forest reserve nothing short of a disaster.

John Richardson Is In City for Visit

"Hello there, John!" That is the greeting being extended by Glendale friends to John Richardson, who arrived in Glendale yesterday from the University of Virginia, for a three weeks' visit with his mother, Mrs. Ella Richardson of 317 North Brand boulevard.

John Richardson has many friends in Glendale, where he attended the Glendale High school for two years. From here he went north to the Mt. Tamalpais Military academy.

Upon graduation he went east to the University of Virginia, at Charlottesville, where he is taking an academic course to lead to engineering. He will return next year to enter the sophomore class.

Before coming west for a visit with his mother he enjoyed visiting friends in New England.

Visits Parents While On Vacation Journey

Theodore Robinson of South Brand boulevard returned Monday night from a three weeks' automobile trip to the northern part of the state. Mr. Robinson spent a week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eustace A. Robinson.

HISTORIC NAMES ON ALL STREETS

Rossmoyne Owners Recall Old Days of Spanish Rule By Titles Chosen

Historical significance attaches itself to the naming of streets and drives in Rossmoyne, the Happyland, according to Lon J. Haddock of the Haddock-Nibley Company, subdividers of the old Ross ranch estate lying within the northern boundaries of the city of Glendale.

Portola, Cordoba, Rubio and other names associated with the early Spanish dons are being used for a basis of street naming, and it is Mr. Haddock's intention to have a brief history on each street marker, something new in the scope of subdivisions.

Mr. Haddock returned from a 3600 miles trip through the west and northwest recently filled with enthusiasm for Glendale and ready to go ahead with many major improvements in Rossmoyne which are of interest to the people here.

Plan Scenic Drive

A scenic drive overlooking the city will be pushed through Rossmoyne Canyon back of the Ross nome place which eventually may be linked with a skyline boulevard planned by M. V. Hartranft of Tujunga and F. P. Newport, subdivider of Verdugo Woodlands.

"People do not appreciate the versatility of our foothills for villa sites as yet," said Mr. Haddock in speaking of Rossmoyne plans. "Why you can see Catalina Island from our property right here in Glendale. And anything in the way of fruits and flowers can be raised, while the topography lends itself to stately mansions. Without being too much of a visionary I can see the northern slopes of Glendale developed into the "happyland" we speak of within the course of two or three years."

Delegates Leave for Missions Convention

Mesdames N. J. Haynes, L. J. Millikan, W. T. Watts and J. N. The convention will be concluded with a mass meeting Friday noon.

ATTRACTIVE FEATURES PLANNED

Many Improvements Add to Artistic Building and Charming Interior

By KATHERINE V. SINKS
Of The Evening News Staff

WHETHER in the brightness of a mid-summer sun or in the soft, clear light of a full moon, the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse stands out prominently on the Glendale landscape as a real beauty spot.

The artistically designed building, with its attractive surroundings, is an object of admiration to all who pass by and during the recent moonlight nights the massive structure and surrounding palm trees silhouetted against the star-dotted sky present a picture of the romance of the early days when padres and dons lived in the California missions and haciendas.

Club women in all parts of California and the United States accord Glendale honor for having one of the most beautiful clubhouses in the United States, and Tuesday Afternoon club women, inspired by the charm of their club home, are constantly adding to the interior and exterior, looking forward to entertaining the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's clubs next spring, and to assisting in the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs in Los Angeles in June.

Attractive Grounds

Glendalians have watched with interest the development of the clubhouse grounds, and have noted recently that the green lawn is flourishing. Other landscape work now being contemplated is an additional grass plot fifty by sixty feet to the east of the clubhouse, and beautification of the parkways around the entire grounds. Other landscape work will be done in the fall.

The part of the club grounds to the north are being reserved for outdoor recreation and plans for the development are to be made later.

Shade and Porch

Another exterior improvement has been on what the clubwomen have chosen to call the "East Terrace," the small porch off the banquet hall to the east. Here an attractive Roman striped awning supported by spears will provide shade and the small porch may be used as a comfortable lounging place by club members.

Mrs. C. W. Houston, second vice-president of the club, is chairman of the club grounds, and has been most efficient in carrying on the work under her direction.

Within the building a visit finds one of the most complete outlays of furniture imaginable. Under the able chairmanship of Mrs. W. E. Evans the clubhouse was most artistically and perfectly furnished for the opening last March. But like all beautiful homes the clubhouse offers opportunity for constant additions and, with all the present furnishings entirely paid for, the club-

REPEAL OF TOLL CHARGES SOUGHT

Joint Committees Will Seek Commission's Ruling on Phone Messages

The repeal of toll charges on telephone calls between Glendale and Los Angeles came up for discussion at the weekly board meeting of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce last night, when a movement was urged to secure free telephone communication between the two cities, and the public service committee of the organization was instructed to confer with the Glendale Merchants' association and to meet with the Glendale city council, with the request that the matter be placed before the satte railroad commission for a decision. In view of the wide difference of opinion on the subject among local telephone users the matter will be closely investigated before any definite recommendations are made. Peter L. Ferry, a member of the board of directors, was appointed to work with the committee on this investigation.

A request was presented in a letter from the Railway Business Association of Philadelphia, asking that the directors go on record as being opposed to the consolidation of the main railroad lines of the country, but as the request, in the minds of the directors, bore the aspect of a political problem, the board refused to act on it for the present. A committee consisting of Attorneys Bert F. Woodard and James McBride was appointed to analyze the letter from the Railway Business association and to report at the next board meeting.

Help for Elks' Band

James A. Apffel, exalted ruler of the Elks' lodge, and Attorney James McBride appeared to ask for the assistance of the Chamber of Commerce in sending the Elks' band to the annual state convention at Eureka. The matter was referred to the budget and advertising committees.

The Parent-Teacher association of the Central Avenue school thanked the Chamber of Commerce for its action in securing the widening of the bridge on North Central avenue across the wash, making this part of the street safe for the children going to and from school. Sidewalks will be installed on each side of the road across the bridge, and the work, which was started this week, will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible. The Chamber of Commerce took the matter up with the board of supervisors, as the bridge lies in Los Angeles county.

JAPAN TIRES OF OLD U. S. TALES

Stories of Washington and Perry Lose Charm; Ask Real Literature

For International News Service

TOKIO, July 25.—Pleading for more stories of other lands in the list of books that the young Japanese read, Yusuke Tsurumi, talented young author of Tokio, recently addressed the Pan-Pacific Union Luncheon Club here and asked for something more from American than the old oft-repeated tales of "Washington cutting cherry trees and Commodore Perry visiting Shimoda."

"I think that many of us are aware of the extreme popularity of the Russian literature in Japan. I was in a party of some fifty Japanese university students recently, and I asked them what foreign literature they liked best. Ninety per cent was for Russian literature, and not a single person for English or American stories.

"While in America I perceived the same sort of feeling. I saw the keen interest held in America for all things affecting Russia, and I traced this partly to the vogue of the Russian literature. Roudin, Iena and Katusha were all well known in many circles in America, and partly for this reason—even in the Romanoff days the Americans loved the lovable Russian people.

"Japan should realize her great need in this direction and should strive to have some of her novels and plays translated and presented to the outside world. If one or two of the characters from the novels of Natsume, Arishima or Mushakoji were made household names in America, Australia, Siam, Mexico and other countries I think we would have done a great deal toward promoting better understanding among nations."

MOVIE CAREER DREAM ENDS

Girl's Ambition Is Blasted By Authorities

Miss Gladys Westby, whose dream of a career in the movies was ended by deportation

NEW YORK, July 25.—Somewhere on the broad expanse of the Atlantic, homeward bound to England, is a mere slip of a girl, dainty—but despondent.

For she is taking back with her blasted hopes, shattered dreams and wounded pride.

Gladys Westby is her name and 18 is her age.

Perhaps as she gazes over the rail of the Belgenland into the blue waters of the Atlantic she sees therein a picture of what might have been but was not so to be.

For it was the girl's ambition to see her name emblazoned in those glittering electrics which have made Broadway the "Great White Way" and proclaim the success of those named in becoming idols of the great army of film fans.

She sees, perhaps, the vision of her goal, almost within her grasp, when suddenly long and relentless arms strike out and drag it beyond reach.

The goal, in this case, was a lucrative film contract, the reward of days and weeks put in as an extra on the film lots.

The hands typified the immigration authorities at Ellis Island.

Miss Westby came to America originally to marry a man many years her senior who—it is a strange coincidence—was in the immigration service. She changed her mind and found a livelihood as an art model and an extra girl on the film lots.

Then came a time when things looked dull. An artist for whom she had posed came to her rescue and offered her temporary quarters in his studio. She accepted.

And her acceptance blighted her chance of success just at the moment that a tendered contract made her opportunity seem the brightest.

A warrant of deportation had been issued on allegations that Miss Westby might become a public charge after immigration authorities had investigated the report that she was lodging at the apartment of the artist.

She appealed, but the appeal was rejected.

And then as the most famous skyline in the world faded into the horizon over the stern of the Belgenland so faded an 18-year-old beauty's dream of fame and fortune in the movies.

Ford Cars Tie Up Traffic on S. Brand

his idea being to lend some tone to the picture, but he was at once warned, in half a dozen raucous voices, such as Ford drivers alone possess, to stand from in front of the huge price tag that was pasted across the windshield of one of the cars, showing President Harding and others who will see the photograph just what it would cost them to get a Ford car, if they were back in Detroit and could drive the bus away from the factory.

After Ralph Browne had fired twice and had fallen back on his reserve ammunition dump of plates, Jesse Smith waved his arm majestically, and the fleet dispersed like the phantom of a dream, and the ordinary traffic again flowed up and down the boulevard as though it had never been interrupted.

But wait till Harding sees that picture of Jesse Smith and The News reporter standing out there so majestically! It's a cinch he will either want to come and stay here permanently, after his present hitch is over in the White House, or he will pass the town up altogether.

Or, perhaps, when Harding sees the picture of that fleet of Fords, he will recall the rumor that Henry Ford may be a candidate for the presidency!

Anyway, this story solves the mystery of the blockade of South Brand boulevard this morning.

U. S. School Teachers Are Invading Mexico

LAREDO, Texas, July 25.—American school teachers are going to Mexico to work.

Within the last two days nearly a hundred young American women have passed through Laredo on their way to Mexico City to attend the summer session of the University of Mexico. The majority of them are teachers of Spanish, or those desirous of learning that language.

Many of them stated they expect to remain in Mexico as school teachers.

Reptile Routs Boys From Swimmin' Hole

ALGOMA, Wis., July 25.—Alligators may make fine pets, but as swimming "pals"—well, not so good, in the estimation of the patrons of this town's "old swimmin' hole."

"Kid" swimmers here were struck with consternation when they found that their favorite water rendezvous had been made a place of abode by a pet alligator five feet in length. Every effort to compel the unwelcome addition to the "gang" to evacuate proved unavailing. The reptile was satisfied with "conditions" and refused, silently but steadfastly, to leave the pool.

More Home-Like

Two very attractive pieces of furniture now occupying places in the foyer are two large mahogany and tapestry davenports. They are of the three-section type of davenport and their style and texture blend wonderfully with their surroundings.

Over the glass in the palm room an artistic awning has been mer days. In the winter time and comfortable on warm sum- the awning may be drawn back affording heat from the sun. Furniture and palms are to be chosen for this room in the fall.

As to club administration Mrs. Daniel Campbell, president, announces that the committee on the club budget is to meet at 10 o'clock Friday morning at the clubhouse. Serving with Mrs. Campbell are Mrs. M. E. Plasterer and Mrs. A. A. Barton.

Of special interest is the compilation of the club year book for 1923-1924 under the direction of Mrs. C. W. Houston. According to Mrs. Houston, four times as much money will be spent for the book as ever spent by the club for that purpose. The book will contain detailed data on club history and administration, and also attractive pictures of the interior and exterior of the club building. It is the plan to have 2000 of the books printed in anticipation of selling many to visiting club women at the district and national gatherhung, making the room shady ings next year.

CHICAGO TO HAVE EXPOSITION HOME

Farm Products and Trade Shows Will Be Displayed In New Quarters

CHICAGO, July 25.—A new and modern exhibition building for the display of trade shows and farm products—the finest in America—is to be established here for the benefit of the numerous varied industries in this vicinity.

It will be known as the American Exposition Palace and will occupy the first two floors of the world's largest building, now under construction, and which overlooks Lake Michigan. The main entrance to the Exposition Palace will open into a luxurious lobby, which will be finished in walnut-trimmed panels and will be decorated throughout with paintings.

The first floor is so arranged that automobile, glassware, farm implements, household and similar trade shows, that usually have sessions of a week or ten days, can display their products without excessive cost of decoration, thereby saving much money. The total exhibition area of the two floors combined will be approximately 144,000 square feet. The mezzanine floor will be devoted to permanent exhibitions of "Better homes."

A modern ventilating system, similar in many respects to those installed in leading theatres, will make possible the staging of summer trade shows and will supply the spectators with fresh, cool and sterilized air. Such modern conveniences as electricity, gas, steam and compressed air also will be installed.

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

Willard Mack's play, "Your Friend and Mine," showing at the Glendale today for the last times, has in it every element of popularity, and that accounts for its great success. All over the United States, wherever it was shown as a stage play, it won success. And now, as a photoplay, it is winning new laurels.

Perhaps one outstanding reason for the lasting success of "Your Friend and Mine" is its sincerity and dramatic strength. Another is to be found in the fact that the famous author himself takes one of the leading roles, both in stage and in screen versions.

Charming Enid Bennett plays opposite Willard Mack in the photoplay, which is laid against the lavish settings of Greenwich Village, New York's Quartier Latin, where striking tableaux and demonstrations of hypnotism take place.

THE GATEWAY

Thrills and chills mingle with frills, in "Safety Last," as drama and suspense are mingled with romance by that popular pair of newlyweds, Harold Lloyd and Mildred Davis.

And no one will be able to question the fact that Harold performs his own stunts, as his smiling countenance appears in almost every scene of the photoplay.

What gets the long-continued sequence of chilly thrills is when the spectacled comedian starts up the outside wall of a twelve-story building, gaining the roof only after the audience is at the point of utter nervous exhaustion and ready to rise in their seats if he goes up another story—or suddenly comes down twelve!

The picture was made at the Hal Roach studios and is distributed by Pathe.

PLAN FORMATION OF GIRL SCOUTS

Material for Two Troops Is Available Among Girls Of La Crescenta

A number of girls met at the home of Mrs. Jessie Hansen Monday afternoon to discuss the forming of Girl Scout Patrols. It is thought there are enough girls here who are interested to form two patrols, each one for girls of different ages.

Mrs. Elmer Bennett accompanied by Miss Jessie Conlin made a trip to Riverside Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin of Ocean Park visited at the home of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Vorhees of Honolulu avenue. They were so enthusiastic over our scenery and warm balmy air, that they purchased a lot for building purposes before returning to their beach home. Mr. Baldwin is a charter member of the Best Order on Earth, the Elks—his chapter having the distinction of being the most northern one there is—it is Anchorage, Alaska.

Arrives in Italy

Mrs. Benito has just received word that her sister arrived safely in Italy where she has gone to visit her mother.

Mrs. M. B. Darrow, Mrs. M. Card and Elizabeth Talbot-Martin visited the Motion Picture Exposition in Los Angeles Monday evening.

Work has been resumed on the building of the Community church on Montrose avenue. When this is completed, the street car line is extended to Honolulu Acres, and the avenue paved, it promises to become a most busy thoroughfare.

The high rents in the city are sending the sensible people out to the foothills to purchase home sites, where they can be paying rent to themselves. All realty dealers up here are getting quite busy on this account and Cline & Romo are expecting to open another tract very soon.

Mother and Four Sons Wiped Out By Death

BUTTE, Mont., July 25.—Violent deaths wiped out an entire family when a widowed mother, Mrs. Charles Turner, and her four sons were drowned in the swift waters of the Big Muddy river, near their homestead, according to word brought to Plentywood.

Bessie Clayton In New Divorce Suit

Bessie Clayton

JERSEY CITY, N. J., July25.—Bessie Clayton, whose nimble toes startled the papas and grandpapas of today back in the "nineties" before they became such, has decided on second thought that she ought to have a divorce.

Bessie used to do quite a bit of dancing with Weber and Fields in the good old days before the fair actorines made a practice of getting publicity through the divorce court medium.

But now Bessie has decided once more that she may be old, but she has young ideas, and has filed a petition against her husband, William Mitchell, playwright.

Bessie and her husband have been separated for something like thirteen years, since 1910, to be exact.

In 1911 Bessie first decided that a divorce was the proper thing, but her plea was denied.

The following year she cancelled a London engagement and hurried to America. Her husband had been reported seriously ill. But when she arrived he had recovered and she returned to the English metropolis without seeing him.

For several years the couple have been living in two houses owned by Mitchell at Long Branch—but separated.

Miss Clayton first jumped into prominence with the famous minstrels of Weber and Fields with a dancing act and for years was one of the most popular actresses on the stage.

In later years Miss Clayton starred in vodvil with a dancing act.

Her husband is well known in theatrical circles as a playwright and producer.

The case will be threshed out in local courts.

Reveal Intrigues of Authors' Society Head

NEW YORK, July 25. — An amazing series of intrigues with women were laid at the door of George Maxwell, president of the Society of American Authors, Composers and Musicians, in a brief filed by Assistant District-Attorney William R. Maloney, in answer to a motion to discuss indictments against Maxwell as the alleged writer of "poison pen" letters.

One of the specific charges under the indictment found against Maxwell was that he had sent a "poison pen" letter to Allan A. Ryan, financier, and Maloney in his brief charged that radio messages of love had been exchanged between Mrs. Ryan and Maxwell.

"I am counting the hours—will be there to meet you in Paris. Love—love and only love—love of my life—if you had only been the father of my children," is the text of a radio sent by Mrs. Ryan to Maxwell, according to Maloney.

In his brief, Maloney said he would establish that Maxwell had been on very friendly terms with Mrs. Ryan, that he posed as a bachelor and that he held subsequent communication here by cable, radio and mail.

The brief sets forth that Mrs. Ryan sailed for Europe in 1922, and on the trip became acquainted with Maxwell. This acquaintance, it is said, continued in London, Paris, Lake Como and Milan.

The WORLD OVER By FRANKLIN B. MORSE. PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

Pugilists and their managers who have been prone to ask all kinds of intemperate prices for their ring services, are not likely to be astute enough to read the handwriting on the wall that has been spread out by the toreadors of Spain. According to reports from that country, bull fighting has gone into a very serious decadence and nothing like the fights, as to number, are being staged as in the days of yore.

This does not come of any humane consideration for the sufferings of the bulls. Instead, the public has become disgusted with the high prices of admission that have been demanded by the promoters, owing to the outrageous remuneration that the toreadors have been asking.

The Spanish public absolutely refused to buy tickets at the prevailing prices. Bull fights became losing ventures and now the bullfighters are without jobs until they are willing to return to making normal salary demands.

The American boxing followers might take a page out of the Spanish book and do the same by the pugilistic gentry here who talk of wanting a million dollars to get in the ring for a matter of half an hour or so. They would only have to deny themselves for a matter of two or three fights and there would be a mighty change. A few flivvers like that which occurred at Shelby, Montana, will quickly rectify present conditions.

Andy Smith, coach of the famous University of California football team, than whom few men know the psychology of training better, ascribes the success that has been attending the efforts of Connie Mack's Philadelphia club, not to any particular ability on the part of the players, but to the fact that they are enthusiastic and always trying for results.

Indifference and lack of enthusiasm is the greatest obstacle to success in any line of athletics. Old-timers are prone to become blase and play for the mere salary, seeing to it that they give what they are paid for and no more—a strict quid pro quo. It is the club that has the fellow who wants to get ahead and forge into public view that gets to the front, and the more ambition there is among the members the more likely is the manager to turn out a winning combination.

DUNDEE TO GET CHANCE AT TITLE

Veteran, With His Career Behind Him, to Meet Little Frenchman

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

NEW YORK, July 25.—Much after the manner of a desert rat who stumbles on a mother lode by the side of his own grave, Johnny Dundee, chronic seeker of world's championship honors, will have his fling at the featherweight title tomorrow night not less than five years behind his time. Always fortune's football, Dundee is granted the boon of facing a champion to a decision with the best of his career behind him. He will hardly be the Dundee of other and better years whatever the outcome of his bout with Eugene Criqui, the Frenchman, with the jaw of a sheep and the heart of a lion.

Fate has a way of dealing diamonds to the rich and spades to the poor. Some ten years ago during his youth, Dundee fought Johnny Kilbane, then feiatherweight champion, what a referee was pleased to call a twenty-round draw. Ringside critics favoring Dundee disagreed rather violently, but to no purpose. Tomorrow night Dundee, the veteran, will meet Criqui, conqueror of Kilbane, for the same title. It took Johnny just that many years of persistent seeking to get another chance at a championship that might very easily have been called his in the first place. So much for fate.

Way Under Weight

It was the custom in those other days for referees to favor the champion in the event that both men were on their feet at the finish. It was fate that Dundee, a man with the speed of a gazelle and the hot Latin blood of Italian forebears coursing through his veins, should have been at his best in such misfit times. A decision over Kilbane would have changed his entire career.

Failing to get a return bout, Dundee went gunning for lightweights, and soon became indentified as a member of that division, although always many pounds underweight. It was an unfortunate choice. Johnny had hardly forsaken the featherweights when Benny Leonard sprang into prominence, almost over night, and proceeding to clean up all the lightweights in sight, soon became recognized as one of the greatest champions of the modern era. That was fate also. No one with less ability than Leonard could have kept Johnny out of the lightweight championship.

Meet Eight Times

They met eight times in all, but Leonard was careful that the encounters were conducted in localities where decisions were taboo. At that he demonstrated that a great lightweight is always better than a great featherweight. So much so, in fact, that the Leonard-Dundee series finally was abandoned.

Almost at the end of his career Dundee was awarded the 130-pound title. Whether he esteemed the honor highly is not known, which is just as well, for fate soon deprived him of it. He met Jack Bernstein in defense of the title some months ago, and lost the decision, although ringside opinion was strongly in his favor.

It is fate, too, that Dundee is to face Criqui tomorrow night instead of Kilbane. He had the original challenge in against the latter, but was jockeyed out of it by the promise that he would get a shot at the winner. Considering Kilbane's adept defense of his title, it is altogether probable that Dundee would be champion today had Criqui been allowed to remain in France.

In a bargain bill the St. Louis Browns took the first from Cleveland, 3 to 1, but the Indians won the second in the thirteenth, 3 to 2.

SPORTS CHATTER By BILL UNMACK PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

At least we will never hear again from Jess Willard in connection with a "comeback." But we still have with us Messrs. Freddie Welsh, Willie Ritchie, Young Corbett, Ad Wolgast and Battling Nelson, all old shells who still think they contain an oyster.

One sports critic writes: "Firpo sent in terrific blows that sunk wrist deep into his (Willard's) body. There was no question that Willard was in shape." Shape like a pillow we assume. At the moment we can't think of anything else on which a man's blow would sink in up to his wrists. Some folks have peculiar ideas, to say the least, of "shape."

Willard said after the fight against Firpo that he wanted to make no alibis. Then he proceeded to tell how he had sprained his wrist to an extent during his training that he was unable to use his left arm. Wonder what his alibi would have been had he been willing to make one.

It was for the best interests of the boxing game that Willard should be defeated and those who care more for the sport than the personnel of the fighters are glad that the "comer" was able to take the measure of the "has been." The heavyweight division has been in the dumps so much largely for the reason that champions have held their titles too long. This has been because of the dearth of promising "comers."

Most popular sport in Naples is rowing.

We have in the college ranks some of our very best amateur golfers. Rudy Knepper of Princeton is one of them, and he is out to win the Inter-Collegiate meet this year.

In 1922 many picked the slight built Tiger to carry off the title, for he had won the medal in the qualifying round and had aided Princeton materially in winning the team matches. Fact is, Rudy was quite the star performer in the tournament, up to the last event.

But golf is fickle. It's one game in which past performances go blooey.

Secor, of Williams, put Knepper out of the running in the third round. The Princeton entry was off his game. But things may be different this year.

Knepper hails from Sioux City, Iowa, "out where the corn grows so tall." He has been bagging titles through the Middle West since 1916 when he was just a kid. These included one trans-Mississippi and an Intercollegiate crown.

Last year in the Amateur Championship, coming up from behind, he eliminated W. B. Torrance of England. Next he defeated Francis Ouimet, and he followed this with a victory over Cyril Tolley.

He is ranked third among Metropolitan amaateurs with a handicap of but one stroke.

Along with his superfine skill on the links goes quite as admirable a sense of sportsmanship and fair play. This Iowa ace is Princeton's hope, but with Jess Sweetser of Yale, 1922 National Amateur champion, and Bobby Jones to represent Harvard, Knepper will have to step some if he wants to realize the college title.

With this trio in the field the Intercollegiate tournament will be second in importance only to the National Amateur, as far as star players are concerned.

Ruth Ties Williams In Home Runs Scored

PHILADELPHIA, July 25. — Babe Ruth, Yankee slugger, went into a tie with Cy Williams for major league home run honors when he clouted out his twenty-third homer of the season in the ninth inning of the game with Philadelphia yesterday.

BABE HERMAN IS STAR WITH STICK

19-Year-Old Glendale Lad Lifts Pill Over Fence at Memphis Park

Babe Herman, 19-year-old son of C. F. Herman, 441 West Harvard street, and star first-sacker for Memphis in the Southern league, clouted out a homer in the Memphis-Mobile game Friday afternoon, July 20, that broke all records at the new Russwood park—and in addition landed Babe all over the sports page of the Memphis News Scimitar.

C. F. Herman, knowing that his son was playing in Memphis, bought a copy of the above paper for Saturday, July 21, thinking to find perhaps a few lines about the previous day's game. Imagine his surprise, then, when clear across the entire eight columns of the page he read in big, black type: "BABE HERMAN SETTING PACE FOR CHICKASAW BATTERS;" and below, to left and right, in double-column spreads, "Herman Lifts Ball Over Center Wall" and "Chick Doorman Walloping the Ball."

News like that is calculated to make any father proud, indeed, and when it is remembered that Babe is only 19 years old, the record he is making is more remarkable still. Last year he rolled up a high batting average for the Western league, with Omaha, for whom he was playing, his percentage being .416; and the year before, with Edmondon, of the Western Canada league, he distinguished himself as a brilliant young player. His percentage with the Southern league to date this year stands at .336, and the Memphis team considers him its star tribesman.

Friday's homer at Russwood park marks the first time a ball had been hit over the fence in a regular league game, since the stadium was built. Babe Ruth clouted one over last year, but it was only in batting practice. As a result of Babe Herman's colossal wallop, the fans threw down a shower of dimes, quarters and half dollars that totaled $31.91, while the Babe romped happily around the sacks with the stands rocking in applause.

CELEBRATE FOR SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brown of Montrose Observe Their 25th Aniversary

A silver wedding anniversary was recently celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brown of Montrose. The twenty-fifth milestone of their marriage journey finds them happy and the parents of a daughter, Mrs. John A. Shea; a son, James L Jr., and a grandson.

Mr. Brown is the president of the Montrose Chamber of Commerce and was one of the organizers of that body. They were married in the state of Pennsylvania, at Dunbar, where they were schoolmates. About five years ago they moved to California and settled in Montrose about a year and a half since.

Plan to Build

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Disson of Nebraska have purchased two lots in Montrose and plan to build a home there. Mr. Disson is a jeweler and watchmaker and may open a store if he finds the prospects favorable.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Persons are taking a vacation via the automobile. They have no particular destination in view, but will just loaf and drive where the notion of the moment takes them. They expect to be gone about a month.

PARTY'S POLICY ONE OF SERVICE

Eng. Labor Leader Claims Selfish Note Is Absent In Organization

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, July 25.—When labor rules Great Britain its foreign policy will be one of "mutual service, as contrasted with a policy of the deliberate pursuit of profit for self."

Sidney Webb, Labor M. P., and one of the intellectual leaders of his party, holds out this promise.

Webb predicts that Labor rule for Great Britain may come in 1926, and if there is then any civilization left in Europe the Laborites will seek to pursue a "Good Samaritan" policy.

"At the root of all our present troubles is the statae of warlike tension from one end to the other," Webb declared. "This is plainly the outcome of the unsatisfactory treaties by which our war was ended.

"We can all see now that Europe could no more be rebuilt upon the passion of hate, the passion of greed and the passion of fear than upon anger and violence.

"Neither hate nor greed, neither fear nor violence is brought more into accord with the requirements of economics or of ethics merely by being national instead of individual.

"What the Labor Party stands for is a policy of mutual service, as contrasted with a policy of the deliberate pursuit of profits for self—it matters not whether the self to be profited be the individual at the expense of other individuals, or the nation at the expense of other nations.

Limit Armament

"Such a policy would aim persistently and whole-heartedly at the earliest possible restoration to economic prosperity of all the nations of the world, including, as a matter of course, those with whom we were lately at war. It would make continuously for an ever-progressing common limitation of armaments. In my view it would inspire our advocacy, within the League of Nations, of the establishment of some practicable international currency and some uninterrupted machinery of international remittances, possibly by the medium of the International Postal Union itself.

"I make bold to say what the world needs is not less government, but more.

"What we have always to insist on is that government should, at all points, be effectively democratized."

Pier Collapses; Drops Fishermen Into Lake

WARSAW, Ind., July 25.—When a Fort Wayne fisherman hooked a twelve-pound pike in Lake Wawasee he called for assistance in landing the big catch. A crowd came running and swarmed onto the pier from which he was fishing. Stout arms heaved and pulled on the fishing line, but the big pike refused to quit the water. So strenuous became the efforts of the fishermen and so great the crowd that the pier collapsed, dropping the entire crowd into the lake. No one was hurt. The fish proved to be one of the biggest catches of the season.

Farmer Killed When Plow Hits Appendix

OCONTO, Wis., July 25.—Alfred Nelson, 40, prosperous farmer of this community, was almost instantly killed when his appendix burst after a plow handle struck him in the side. Physicians who examined him said he had been suffering from chronic appendicitis for many years, although he was unaware of his ailment.

Burton Holmes Stuff, Eh?
Even Harding Is Traveling
Henry Ford, Funny Man
It's Dollar Day Tomorrow

By Gil A. Cowan

IF it weren't for people trapesing around The Glendale Evening News would have to print a whole page of editorials, or something worse, to fill the space now being devoted to travelogues, so to speak.

Take yesterday's edition for a good example. W. B. Kirk tells us all about Christiana, Norway, and on Friday we will read of Copenhagen, Denmark. Very interesting and entertaining articles, by the way.

And W. F. Tower, another regular contributor to The Glendale Evening News, provided a sketch regarding the "rim of the world" trip here in our own Southern California mountains. Not quite so expensive as touring the world.

But, to Mrs. James B. McEnany and her brother, Dr. Neal Rudy of Glendale, goes the credit for having encircled the globe and seen about all the sights one cares to carry around. Their return to this city was an occasion for a lengthy travelogue which was extremely interesting.

In national affairs travel features the biggest news. The return of Senator Hiram Johnson of California to the United States after several months in Europe for a political insight of the international situation is equalled in the economic realm by the return of George M. Reynolds, Chicago banker, from a six months' junket. He, too, is of the idea America must stay out of Europe at this time.

More important, however, are the travels of President Harding. When he returns to Washington, undoubtedly he will carry home the thought that there is more than a world court problem confronting his administration. He will know that the farmers of the middle west, the people of Alaska, the natives of the Philippines and the wheat-growers of the northern and western states are looking to him for relief.

Thankfully, California has little or nothing to worry the president on the occasion of his visit, although he will likely see the apparent necessity for capital improvements in the way of federal buildings which will be brought before congress this coming fall.

President Harding, however, will find the political reflection in California which will tell him just how his administration is considered. For here are found the residents of Alaska and Maine, Mississippi and Idaho, Illinois and Arizona, not to mention all of the forty-eight states and two territories by name.

Henry Ford turns humorist That is if you appreciate his peculiar twist of mind which permits of the following publicity to be broadcast under a Michigan city date line as follows:

"Henry Ford does not want to be president, he told a group of people here before sailing homeward aboard his yacht.

"'You see, I have a bigger job now,' was all he added.

Yes, being the world's richest man is some job.

And rich people have a poor time in life.

Says the Hollywood Citizen of rich people:

"They closed a hotel in Chicago yesterday because of the violation of prohibition laws.

"The proprietor plead, in justification of his contention that it should remain open, that it was patronized by the 'best people in Chicago.'

"As 'best people' are commonly known it is safe to assume that he spoke the truth when he said that he had their patronage.

"'Best people' everywhere throughout the land seem quite prone to patronize the bootlegger and encourage the violation of their country's laws.

"Some day 'best people' will be synonymous with "good citizens' rather than with 'people of wealth'.

"Then we will hear no more of blind pigs being patronized by the 'best people'."

Tomorrow is Dollar Day in Glendale. Get out the old "cartwheels" folks and start business rolling early in the morning.

The merchants of Glendale are deserving of your trade. "Buy at home".

While snow was falling in the Sierras yesterday the Southland was sweltering in the summer's sun.

And some easterners' claim California doesn't have "climate".

Soda Fountains May Gain 'Dry' Verdict

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Where "Pussyfoot" Johnson has failed so far to put England on a strictly "aqua" basis, American iced delicacies and soft-drink manufacturers may partially succeed, according to a report received by the Department of Commerce from Consul Jewell at Birmingham, England.

The consul reported that recently three American soda fountains were opened in Birmingham and that they have attained great prosperity. He added, however, that, owing to English conservatism, deep-rooted habits and usually cool weather, the industry will never flourish as in the United States.

Crushed granite was used in the concrete with which a street in a New Hampshire city was paved to a width of 140 feet.

BASEBALL DANCE AT TWIN PINES

Sunland Team to Hold Hop Tonight; News Notes Personal Mention

Tonight, July 25, there will be a special baseball dance at Twin Pines pavilion, Sunland. The hop is being put on by the Sunland ball club, assisted by the Ptomaine Tommy team from Los Angeles. All ball players and their friends are expected to be there. No umpires will be allowed on the premises to mar the evening's entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Harswell have returned to their home after visiting in the east. Mrs. Harswell's mother accompanied them and will remain in California.

Mrs. James Rice and her granddaughter, Miss Ethel Philips, have returned to their home in Akron, Ohio, after spending a few weeks visiting with Homer Rice, Mrs. Rice's son.

Visiting With Sister

George E. Huse is enjoying a visit with his sister, Mrs. David Soash, who recently arrived from Estherville, Iowa. Mr. Soash is making the trip overland by automobile. They expect to make their home in California.

A big family reunion picnic was recently held at Brookside park, Pasadena, by members of the Adams family. A. Adams Jr., president of the Sunland Rural Telephone system and proprietor of the Sunland Ripe Olive cannery, and family were present. Others who enjoyed the outing were his cousin, Bert Adams, and family of Chicago, William Blumfield and family of Sunland and other relatives, totaling thirty-two. Bert Adams and his family are visiting another brother at San Diego before returning to their home in Chicago.

Return Ball Game

The Sunland ball club will meet the Ptomaine Tommys team in a return engagement next Sunday on the Monte Vista park grounds. Sunland did the poisoning at the last meeting, 3 to 1, and expect to do the same this week, but the P. T.'s have other plans.

During the same time visitors to the Palace of Versailles averaged 500 daily and paid in 102,307 francs.

REFUSE AUCTION PRICE ON HOUSE

Owner Retains Residence to Wait for Improvement In Realty Market

The auction sale held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stroup on Honolulu avenue was a success as far as the furnishings and household goods was concerned. These things were bid in at ridiculously low figures, the house and house and grounds, however, proved less easy to dispose of, as the owners did not care to accept the price offered. However, Mr. Stroup should have no difficulty in disposing of this beautiful piece of property as there are eleven large oak trees on the grounds and these are always a great asset on California property.

C. Jennings Young, proprietor of Young's garage, corner of Honolulu and Los Angeles avenues is selling La Crescenta name plates for autos at cost. Golf Stars Contest For Amateur Title

MAYFIELD COUNTRY CLUB, CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 25.—Match play in the Western Amateur Golf association tournament, to determine the 1923 champion, began here this morning with thirty-two players qualified. Jesse Sweetzer, national amateur champion, was first to start, leaving the tee at 9 o'clock in his match with Leonard Martin.

Charles "Chick" Evans, Jr., of Chicago, seven times winner of the highest golf honors of the association, winning the last two years consecutively, had as an opponent, J. C. Ward, Kansas City.

Sweetzer came safely through the first round of title play when he defeated Martin, five up and four to play.

Seventy Per Cent of Pupils Engage in Athletics at University

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 25.—Not less than 2000 Yale students, or about 70 per cent of the undergraduate body here, participated in the twenty recognized sports open for competition during the year ending last June, according to a report by Professor Clarence W. Mendell, faculty member in charge of athletics. This is the largest number of Yale students ever participating in athletics in a single college year. Indications are that the percentage will be increased steadily in the future.

Professor Mendell, in his report to President James R. Angell, pointed out notable additions to the athletic plant of Yale, including the Lapham Field House adjoining Yale Bowl, the crew house on the Housatonic river at Derby, which will be headquarters annually for three regattas, and the Griest estate, which will provide facilities for golf and winter sports. At old Yale Field, the nucleus of Yale's outdoor sport fields, two baseball diamonds, three football gridirons and ten tennis courts were completed, and the next college year will see fifteen more tennis courts ready for use there. A wooden running track has been constructed outdoors, and the rowing tank has been restored.

'Wife Will Never Know,' Says Thief, Sentenced

NEW YORK, July 25.——"My wife and children will never know; they will think I'm away on a business trip," said Edward Davis, 29, sentenced to five years in Sing Sing for burglary, explaining his refusal to divulge his identity.

ISSUE CALL FOR MORE CARRIERS

Local Postal Authorities Seek Additional Men to Deliver Mail

The recent reorganization of the Glendale city mail delivery has exhausted the list of applicants who had qualified for positions in the local postoffice, and Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson is planning to put on an extra force of carriers in the immediate future to assist in handling the constantly growing volume of mail passing through the local office.

For the present, he states, the applicants for the positions will be placed on the staff without having to go through any examination, although this requirement will have to be met later by all of those whom he employs. The men to be employed for this work should be aged 18 years or over.

Secures Funds

Funds for the payment of the extra carriers have been set aside for the Glendale office after a lengthy correspondence with the postoffice department at Washington, in which it was pointed out that this allowance was imperative if the service was to be maintained at the proper pitch of efficiency.

John H. Bartlett, former assistant postmaster general, and Congressman Walter F. Lineberger have aided materially in securing the extra money for this purpose, according to Postmaster Jackson.

COUNTY OFFICERS WAGE WAR ON BURNING BRUSH

DRILLING FOR OIL NEAR GLENDALE

Wild Cat Giving Good Indications Recently, Is Statement Made

PROSPECTING for oil in the very gateway of southern Glendale, the Beatty Company, more recently named Calwyn, it is understood, has a rig working over a hole which, for the last sixty days, has been giving good indications for a wild cat.

And it is considered to be the wildest sort of kitty, having been located by a divining rod after geologists had refused to make remarks. It is located on what is known as the York Boulevard manor tract, two blocks east of Verdugo road, and two blocks west of Glassell avenue, just over the line in Los Angeles.

Two lion tamers, a driller and a tool dresser, are tending the rig, putting in ten hours a day, sending the bit through enough different formations to discourage the average concern. Now they are down 4,120 feet and still going at six feet a day, with a little better showing day by day. They expect to keep on going for some weeks if necessary, although they are cutting through a blue shale which they believe covers an oil and strata or, better yet, a gas pocket.

Show Confidence

The well has been in course of drilling for more than three years, many passersby paying much attention to the operations and many a good oil man forecasting a dry hole for the quarter of a million dollar investment. Surely the Beatty people are deserving something for their confidence in the 10 acres under lease in that vicinity.

You know geologists doubted the Signal Hill field, so the fact that this wildcat well is located near Glendale instead of Long Beach is nothing "again' it." Be that as it may, the indications are that some sort of a well will be

D. A. R. Regent Endorses Legion Plea For Honor To American Standard

THE PLEA yesterday in The Glendale Evening News from the local Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion, for proper respect to the American flag at the parade receiving President and Mrs. Harding August 3, has received hearty backing from the General Richard Gridley chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, through the regent, Mrs. C. W. Houston.

"As a daughter of the Revolution and regent of the Glendale D. A. R. chapter I heartily endorse the Auxiliary's request," says Mrs. Houston. "During the war Americans strictly carried out etiquette concerning the nation's flag, but since the signing of the armistice we have gotten rather lax and I have noticed on recent occasions lack of proper respect when the flag is passing by or the national anthem is sung."

Issue Flag Circular

Through the efforts of the national D. A. R. chapter a flag circular is in the hands of thousands of Americans and bears authentic data direct from the War Department at Washington, D. C.

Among important rules appearing in the circular are:

"When the national flag is carried, as in a procession, with another flag or flags, the place of the national flag is on the right, i. e., the flag's own right. (The staff edge of the flag is the heraldic dexter or right edge.)

"The flag should never be hung nor displayed union down except as a signal of distress at sea.

"Old or worn-out flags should not be used either for banners or for any secondary purpose:

Rules for Salute

"Existing regulations governing the army provide that when officers and enlisted men pass the national flag, not encased, as at regimental headquarters in the field or when the national flag is carried in a parade or procession, they will render honors as follows: If in civilian dress and covered, they will uncover, holding the head-dress opposite the left shoulder with the right hand; if uncovered, they will salute with the right-hand salute."

The D. A. R. also heartily endorses the proper respect shown the playing of the national anthem as expressed yesterday in the request from the Legion Auxiliary.

L. A.-CHICAGO TRAIN TIME REDUCED

Union Pacific to Speed Up Continental Limited, Is Announcement

Beginning July 29, the Union Pacific will speed up its Continental Limited, making it a rival of the same road's Los Angeles Limited, for popularity. An hour and fifteen minutes will be cut from the Continental's schedule between Los Angeles and Chicago.

This speeding up involves a change in the departing time of the Continental Limited from Los Angeles, eastbound. On and after July 29 this train—No. 20 on the road's dispatching orders—will leave Los Angeles at 5:15 p. m. instead of 4:15.

The quicker schedule for the Continental Limited will make that train's run to Chicago little more than an hour longer than the Los Angeles Limited, which makes the run in sixty-eight hours.

No change will be made in the schedule of the Los Angeles Limited.

Shortening of the time of the Continental Limited is in line with the Union Pacific's policy to better its through service between Southern California and the east in every way possible. Another move in this direction was the recent addition of a through St. Louis sleeper on the Los Angeles Limited, it is stated.

Nearly 6,000 mines in the United States produce bituminous coal.

OFFICIAL TO QUESTION AGENTS

Realty People Will Have To Make Replies Under New License Law

Realty men—and women—of Glendale are interested in the fact that the new real estate license law goes into effect on August 17.

What's a deed? What's a contract of sale. What's a mortgage? What's a trust deed? What's a lease?

Foolish questions? Oh, no! The questions are in the form of a questionnaire prepared by Edwin T. Keiser, state real estate commissioner, and by its use he hopes to elevate the real estate business.

Under Section 9 of the new real estate act the commissioner may require proof that the applicant for real estate broker's license has a fair knowledge of the English language, including reading, writing, spelling, elementary arithmetic; a fair understanding of the rudimentary principles of real estate conveyancing and general legal effect of deeds, mortgages, land contracts of sale and leases, and a fair understanding of the obligations between principal and agent as well as of the provisions of the California real estate act.

G. A. R. VETERANS TO HOLD PICNIC

Annual Outing Scheduled for Friday at Echo Park In Los Angeles

Under the shade trees of Echo Park members of the Glendale G. A. R. and Women's Relief corps will gather Friday for their annual picnic outing. One of the happiest affairs in the history of the two organizations is anticipated, and plans are being made for serving lunch to 125. There will be several out of town guests and an enjoyable reunion will take place.

Gathering in the park at 10 o'clock in the morning the veterans, the women of the corps and their families will spend the time informally until the luncheon hour shortly after noon.

Long tables, simply decorated, are to be arranged for the luncheon. Women of the corps will be hostesses and the president, Mrs. Flora Pixley, heads the committee.

The impromptu program in the afternoon will be in charge of the post and among the speakers will be T. M. Barrett, commander; Rev. C. R. Norton, chaplain; Rev. W. B. Collins, special guest; and Dr. J. C. Kendrick, a veteran from Pasadena.

Pet Rooster Saves Child From Snake

THOMPSON, Ill., July 25.—Miss Della Robertson, daughter of a farmer residing on the Cole place near here, is the victim of a most unusual accident.

While watching her baby brother playing in the yard, a snake of the blue racer variety came scurrying through the grass. Miss Robertson made a leap for the child while Alarm Clock, the pet Plymouth Rock rooster on the place, pecked his snakeship, or was it the snake's hip?

This infuriated the reptile, which proceeded to bite Miss Robertson on the left ankle. She forthwith slew the viper.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McAtee recently returned from a fifteen months' sojourn in Honolulu and are now visiting at 2603 Hermosita avenue with Mrs. McAtee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Totman. Mr. McAtee at one time was proprietor of the establishment at 471 West Lexington street, known as the Bungalow grocery. Mrs. McAtee was formerly Miss Roma Totman and was connected with the local office of the Southern California Telephone Company.

GRAPES NOW GOING TO MARKET

Imperial Valley Sends Out Carload Lots; Cherry Crop Concludes

Shipments of table grapes in carload lots are under way this week in Imperial valley, it is stated by E. E. Kauffman of the California Co-operative Crop Reporting Service, in a bulletin issued today.

The cherry crop, he reports, is now about concluded, with a record of 591 cars sent to eastern markets.

While Glendale does not grow cherries, Louis LeMesnager here has hundreds of acres of Verdugo hills land devoted to grapes which he has succeeded in raising without irrigation. These soon will be ready for shipment by the carload over the Glendale & Montrose line. Practically all of the fruits mentioned in the report thrive here, although home consumption cares for all except oranges, lemons and grapes.

Other Shipments Reported

The bulletin also states that apricot shipments to June 30 amounted to 458 cars, double the number of last year, while the movement of plums has totaled 2,271 carloads. Shipments of cantaloupes for the season total 9,057 cars from Imperial valley, with the Turlock district soon to begin shipments.

It is reported that while canning companies are offering $50 a ton for pears, their requirements are so rigorous this year, as regards standards of size and quality, few growers will be able to do business with them.

Pear Growers Meet

Executives of the California Pear Growers' Association met Saturday with officials of the leading companies to discuss matters pertaining to shipment to eastern markets.

In the wholesale district today there were few price changes in either fruits or vegetables. Figs were considerably lower as a result of heavy receipts, and blackberries sold off for the same reason. Cantaloupes were in overabundance and generally sold along the lower range of prices quoted.

Potatoes and onions continue very firm, with premiums paid for extra fancy offerings of practically all varieties in both commodities.

Mrs. F. J. Formanac Is Home From Dakota

Mrs. F. J. Formanac of 214 South Kenwood street has returned to Glendale after a two months' trip to her old home in North Dakota, where she visited relatives and friends.

Mr. Formanac, who remained at home, expresses the desire to return to the "frontier once again," where he can shoot prairie chickens and hunt wild game as he did in the days when North Dakota was developing.

Asks Reserve Officers To Get Army Recruits

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Faced with the loss of 74,000 men by January 1, 1924, and lacking funds or facilities to recruit men in their place, Major-General Robert C. Davis, adjutant-general of the army, has written to each of the 77,000 reserve officers urging them to recruit one man each for the American army in order to "save it from oblivion."

Ex-Soldiers Striving To Keep Up Courage While Fighting Back To Health

By BURL RAY TUTTLE

THE mental attitude of so many wounded and tubercular soldiers is the hardest thing the hospital doctors have to contend with in attempting rehabilitation. The men have suffered so much and have been shut in with their despair that it is beyond the power of medicine and science to shock the men out of their despondency so their bodies may be healed.

All drugs and knives and cunning methods of science are small things in effecting even a partial cure of these veterans, compared with the message, "Somebody cares." Day after day they lie in the hospitals, living under rules and discipline necessary in effecting an arrested case of tuberculosis; some with no friends or relations within hundreds of miles of these hospitals, some no relations at all or homes other than the hospitals. Week after week, no letters, no real news to cheer them up when they are expected to have contented minds.

Families In Need

Delayed compensation claims, some with families to look after, with no means with which to do it. Some never will receive compensation for the reason their disability is not of a service origin, but still have to buck the world and take care of their families the best way they can.

There are hundreds of these veterans who would welcome a little word of cheer now and then, even a few lines to help drive away the blues, knowing that the greatest nation on earth has not forgotten her heroic sons who gave their life blood for a just cause and are now fighting the greatest enemy known to mankind, "the white plague."

There is something that every one of you can do.

There are hundreds of these veterans at the Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle. They fought and won the war. The end of the war didn't mean the end of the fighting for these men at Sawtelle—far from it. They are now fighting their second and greatest fight, a long drawn out fight which means their health and lives. Some of them have waged their second fight for four years and there are yet a few signs of victory ahead.

Keep Them Smiling

You can help them keep the smiles on their faces, you can help them to win. You can give them entertainment. If you play any musical instrument, sing some funny songs, or do a dance, you can help more than you think.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club of Glendale, Bill Desmond and a host of other friends who are bringing cheer to the Annex Hospital at Sawtelle, the tangible proof of their gratitude for these veterans' service, brings sunshine into the gloom of despair. So why place

LOCAL GIRL LIBRARIAN OF STATE

Miss Alice Pray Receives Appointment at Concord, New Hampshire

An honor has come to Miss Alice Pray, daughter of Mrs. Emma T. Pray of 368 West Milford street, her appointment to the position of state librarian at the state library at Concord, N. H. She left on Monday night for the east to assume the duties of her new office.

Miss Pray took her library training in the library at Concord and came west to accept a position in the Kern County Law Library at Bakersfield. She has been in the northern city since last fall.

Upon the recent resignation of the librarian of the Concord library, the officials communicated with Miss Pray and she accepted their offer of the position of state librarian.

Lumber Man Visits J. A. Endicott Home

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Johnson and daughter of Coos Bay, Ore., are guests at Mrs. Johnson's brother's home, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Endicott, of 423 West Broadway.

Mr. Johnson is the owner of large lumbering interests in Oregon, having a sawmill at Reedsport. He also operates railroad lines into his own timberlands and sends his products to world ports in his own ships.

Lumbering is very good at the present time, building material being in large demand on the coast, according to the visitor, who is immensely enjoying Southern California's summer climate.

GET PERMIT FOR FIRES, WARNING

Arrests Will Be Made If Law Violated, Asserts Forester Flintham

THE fire protection movement directed against brush-burners who fail to live up to the specifications of county permits and who neglect to obtain these documents of permission, will be continued without laxity, according to County Fire Warden and Forester Stuart Flintham. Most of the offenders of the law, prosecuted in justice courts, have come from the foothill districts, with the La Crescenta section leading in number of violations.

Forester Flintham has spurred on his numerous deputies to collect all evidence where householders or ranchmen have disobeyed the statutes in regard to carelessness with their brush fires and he has instructed these deputies to bring the alleged offenders into the county halls of justice.

Of late there have been several defendants haled into the tribunals and all of them have suffered penalties. The offense constitutes an act of misdemeanor. Usually fines are imposed and the provision calling for jail sentences has not been used, through the requests of the fire warden deputies. But, according to Mr. Flintham, unless the practice of permitting fires to spread ceases, the courts will be called upon to exercise the jail term clause.

Season Dangerous

The summer is the most dangerous season of the year, and this year is no exception. A serious foothill blaze with a wind blowing toward the mountains may mean a repetition of great canyon fires that have cleaned off the mountain sides of timber and destroyed cabins three years ago when the San Gabriel and Pacoima blazes cost the government thousands and thousands of dollars. Right now the inflammable material in the Angeles reserve was never in a better condition for a far-reaching fire, according to United States Forest Service offi-

BURBANK

CITIES COMBINE EXPOSITION DAYS

Burbank and San Fernando To Stage Entertainment At Park Thursday

With Burbank Day and San Fernando Valley Day at the Monroe Doctrine Centennial exposition both coming Thursday, July 26 that day will be one of outstanding importance at the big Los Angeles fair.

The program calls for the crowds from the San Fernando valley to gather on the grounds at Exposition park not later than 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The program will be given at 4 o'clock, the intervening two hours being for the purpose of looking over the premises.

The exposition management has distributed 1200 free tickets of admittance. And it might also be added that Burbank now appears on the map of the San Fernando valley. How it got there is another matter—but there it is!

Valley Chambers Unite

The Associated Chambers of Commerce of the San Fernando valley met recently at Owensmouth and last Thursday at Van Nuys, for the purpose of mapping out a program by which the valley towns can co-operate with the freeholders of the valley who are already a part of Los Angeles, in seeing that the interests of the section involved are given proper consideration in the formation of the proposed new city charter, as provided at the recent election.

How can the various valley cities retain something of their individuality, after the big metropolis has completed swallowing them up?" That is the question vitally concerning the Associated Chambers of Commerce just at present.

In the opinion of many, this can be done only by adopting the borough system, such as is used in New York and other large cities. As the time when the new Los Angeles charter is to be drafted and adopted is close at hand, those at these meetings believe that no time is to be lost in seeing to it that their respective communities fare favorably.

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Still have finished their home at 606 Orange Grove avenue. They had as week-end guests recently Mr. and Mrs. William Still of Long Beach Mr. Still's brother and wife. Harry B. Still, who was for two years a contractor in Long Beach, has taken out a contractor's license in Burbank.

Arthur Le Terneau, who has been living at the Santa Rosa court, has gone to Quebec to visit friends and relatives. He took the southern route and plans to stop over in New Orleans for two weeks. On his return, he will take the northern route, stopping for two weeks at San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Houghton and their daughter, Alice, who formerly lived in Burbank, were the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Thompson, of Verdugo avenue. The Houghtons were recently called to Illinois by the death of Mr. Houghton's father. It was at this time that they gave up their Burbank residence. They have since been living in Los Angeles.

THOUSANDS HAVE PLANS FOR PEACE

$100,000 Offer for Scheme To Create Amity Brings Flood of Letters

By JACK CARBERRY
For International News Service

NEW YORK, July 25.—World peace is a simple matter of:

First—Changing the present financial system.

Second—Altering the heart of mankind by religion.

Third—Making over the world's educational system.

Such, at least, is the conclusion drawn from the first 500 letters received by Edward W. Bok, whose offer of $100,000 for the best "practicable plan by which world peace may be achieved" has buried his New York office under an avalanche of mail.

In every tongue—four letters cannot even be identified as to language—plans for world peace poured into Bok's office. Typical samples of plans offered are:

Inconsistencies Shown

"Get rid of Wall street—money causes war." Such letters, in nine cases out of ten, conclude, "I hope to win the $100,000."

"Make legislation which will send every man to church—if all were religious we'd have no war."

"Only by educating the children of today against war can we have peace."

Many persons pleaded to present peace plans in person.

The group urging that the manufacture of munitions be stopped is about tied with the number pleading that American "arm to the teeth."

The suggestion that the people vote on war is another favorite.

SCORES RUN, DIES

APPLETON, Wis., July 25.—Frank A. Graff, 38, member of a Helena, Wis., baseball team, dropped dead a few moments after he had walked to the bench after scoring a run. Death resulted from overexertion, physicians said.

Practically all of the iodine of the earth's surface is in the sea, according to Dr. McClendon.

EAGLE ROCK

SCOUTS ENJOYING ARROWHEAD CAMP

Games and Athletics Feature Daily Programs Staged In Mountains

The Eagle Rock Boy Scouts who went into camp at Lake Arrowhead on July 21 are reported by Dr. Harry B. Crawford to be having a big time. Among them are Charles Connaught and Harold Munyon.

Dr. Crawford took the boys up last Saturday, July 21, and will bring them back on Monday, July 30. They are at present under the supervision of Harold Benner, scout executive of the Verdugo Hills Boy Scout council.

The boys are at Camp Roy L. Kent, so named after the Mr. Kent of Glendale who has been so active in scout work. The present session is really a post-season camp, as the third regular period came to a close on July 19.

Swimming, boating, fishing, hiking, games and contests of all kinds mark the progress of the camp, and Dr. Crawford states that good "eats" are not the least of the many attractions offered.

A special headquarters troop has been organized, under the leadership of Walter Wescott, star athlete and football captain of the University of California, southern branch.

Ray Saunders, who was with the local boys at the previous period, has been in camp with the California National Guards near Salinas.

"These boys are receiving priceless training in the rudiments of American manhood and good citizenship," Dr. Crawford states. "I can think of no finer influence in the life of a growing boy, than that offered by Scouting."

Woodcraft Girls Camp

Under the inspiring leadership of their chief, Miss Jane Butler, and chaperoned by Mesdames Butler, Weil and Cruzan, the local Woodcraft Girls went into camp last week on the hills to the north of Montiflora avenue, east of Glen Eyre, where they put into practice many of the thories of camping they have learned in the past few months.

Each member of the Sons of the Revolution who secures ten new memberships in the organization between now and the first of the year will be given a $100 life membership, it was announced following the last meeting of the board of directors.

The board feel that by offering this unusual inducement they will greatly swell the membership in a most worthy body.

Church Plans Delayed

By reason of the zoning tangle, work on the proposed new Congregational church has been temporarily held up. The trouble is, it may become impossible to make use of the old building as a part of the larger scheme, as had been contemplated.

Mesdames Bessie Morris, Samuel Lily and Ruth Miller are new "stars" in the constellation known as the Order of the Eastern Stars.

The big tree at the northwest corner of Colorado boulevard and Fairmont avenue, where the Shell Oil Company is erecting a new fuel station, will stand, promises the owner of the property.

A. Larson, of Los Angeles, has bought the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Chambers, 136 West Myrtle avenue, together with the acre of ground comprising the premises.

TUJUNGA

EFFICIENCY IN DRUG BUSINESS

A. C. Stover and Brothers Bring Establishment Into Popularity

That Tujunga is rapidly becoming a community of such size and importance that nothing less than the best is acceptable is evidenced by the patronage the progressive business houses in general and The Tujunga Drug Store in particular are receiving.

A. C. Stover, the present owner of the establishment, took over the business only a few months ago.

In the time that Mr. Stover has operated the store many changes and improvements have been effected. The stock has been brought up to date in all lines and only the best quality is dispensed. A full line of magazines and periodicals is available and a modern service-plus soda fountain is receiving the patronage it deserves.

Aided By Brothers

The proprietor's brothers, J. W. and H. F. Stover, are associated on the staff of the store. H. F. Stover has charge of the fountain and refreshment concession at the Garden of the Moon. The other brother is in the store. The enterprise of this store is typical of others in various lines of business in the last year and a half.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC PLAN

Hydro-electric projects planned for the island of Sardinia will permit its zinc and other mineral products to be refined and manufactured at home instead of being exported in a raw state.

Yearly production of furs total $95,680,000, of which North America contributes about $24,000,000.

Says Rich Men's Sons Make Poor Employes

WASHINGTON, July 25.—It is a mistake to employ rich men's sons or relatives in the management of business. That is what Charles M. Schwab, millionaire steel manufacturer, and former director of the emergency fleet corporation, declared in testifying as a witness for the defense in the Morse conspiracy trial in District Columbia criminal court.

"Rich men's sons don't work and do not make for efficiency," Schwab declared.

Schwab testified that on a visit during the war to Morse's Virginia Shipbuilding corporation in Alexandria, Va., he found everything in "first-class condition" and that, in his judgment, the plant was worth between one and a half and two million dollars.

Gunman Caught After Killing of Officer

PINE BLUFF, Ark., July 25.—One of the men held responsible for the death of City Detective George W. Moore and probable fatal wounding of Detective L. C. Hay, in a pitched battle on the streets of Little Rock early Tuesday, has been captured in a blood-drenched automobile at Sheridan, Ark.

The wounded man was almost dead. Officers believe his companion died while escaping and was thrown alongside the road somewhere between Pine Bluff and Sheridan.

DEPTH OF OCEAN

The greatest known ocean depth is nearly five miles deeper than the deepest mine on land.

Business Men Seek to Foster Alaska Trade

SEATTLE, July 25.—On a forty-day trip to Alaska and Siberia, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce party, including 22 members of the California Chamber, as well as tourists from San Francisco and Seattle, left Seattle yesterday on the steamer Buford.

Included in the party is P. A. Snow, motion picture man who specializes in wild animal films. He will photograph wild game in Alaska as well as seals on Pribloff island, the largest fur seal rookery in the world.

The trip is being made to establish better acquaintance between Alaska merchants and those of the states.

Washed Out Tracks Halt Train Traffic

BILLINGS, Mont., July 25.—Sanders, on the Northern Pacific, and Wyola, on the Burlington, Sunday night and Monday morning halted all traffic from the east into Billings. At Sanders 1,000 feet of track are washed out and trains are held up indefinitely at Forsyth. At Wyola, on the Burlington, tracks are also washed out, but repairs are under way.

Slayer of Railroad Detective Must Hang

SALEM, Ore., July 25.—Dan Casey must hang August 10 for killing J. H. "Buck" Phillips, special O. W. R. R. & N. detective, in Portland freight yards in June, 1921. The state supreme court dashed the last hopes of the convicted murderer when it denied a motion of Casey's counsel to recall the mandate.

Search for Author of Threatening Letters

OAKLAND, July 25.—Operatives of a private detective agency and deputy sheriffs of Contra Costa county have started a search for the writer of two letters to the detective agency in which veiled threats were made against Mabel Normand, motion picture actress, and Mack Sennett, motion picture producer, and in which the writer confessed he was the slayer of William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director.

Heart and Home — Woman's Page — Health and Happiness

Dan Lyons was lost. For hours he had walked on through the brush and toward the hills telling himself that he would come upon a house or a village. They had warned him no city man could expect to find his way to the pass, that it was a foolhardy thing to do, but he had set out. Now the pack on his shoulder was light. There was water here and he might shoot something. He would go on through until his legs gave out.

On the third day after discovering that he was off the trail which he had mapped so carefully, the idea came to the lost man that the world was full of mountains beckoning him. It seemed to him that on the other side of each was a large city, a place filled with men and food. He climbed the nearest hill, then went to the next, each time filled with hope. Always he looked out upon more.

Spurred by the persisting thought of what was over the hills, he hastened on, neglecting to conserve his strength. The woodsman would have hunted and fished and made his way deliberately with full vigor. Dan climbed a steep grade and knew his strength was all but gone.

When night came he rolled up in his blankets, facing the heights, and was more certain than ever that on the other side was the end of his journey. He could almost see the lights of a city. Trees against the sky took the shape of buildings. He closed his eyes and told himself he must sleep and rest. The wind drove a heap of tumbleweed past him and he jumped to his feet. Then he thought he heard a whistle. Realization came to him that his imagination was playing him tricks and he fought a battle for self-control. A mist descended from above and the moon shone through it, giving a silver-gray color to his surroundings. Dan Lyons sat on a log, wrapped himself like an Indian in his blanket, and smoked his pipe.

In front of him, looming grotesquely in the billowing, changing mist, walked a tall man. Others followed. Sometimes they appeared ten, twelve feet tall and again they were pygmies, abnormally fat. Dan Lyons smoked his pipe and told himself he was going mad. When he realized that he did not seem to care, that he was too tired to be frightened, he smiled.

"Go on," he said to the file of figures which passed in front of him over the slope, "go on with your prosession. I want to be amused."

He strained his eyes to make out what manner of ghosts these were. Some seemed to be women. Others were laden with bundles, suitcases, blankets, golf cases, hat boxes.

"Moving day in spook-land," Dan said. "There's one with an umbrella!"

The last of the figures passed and a weird idea came to the watcher. Why not? He would follow this procession. He had tried his own skill long enough. The blanket slid to the ground as he arose and walked after the figures, which changed shape as the mist clouds thickened or became thin. He quickened his pace, and could see three of the marchers now, then four. There was a trail here. Now they were going down.

A whistle blew and lights danced. Somebody shouted and took him by the arm. The city over the hills—a ghost city and a celebration! Dan knew he was talking wildly, protesting he was, one of the company. Then he forgot everything.

After a while the man was conscious of a rhythmic pounding and a sense of motion. He discovered he was riding in a train and found he was stretched out in the smoker of a Pullman and that several men were watching him.

"You are all right now." An elderly man spoke. "Had a tough time of it. It is lucky you found us. Better try to sleep."

"The ghosts?" Dan asked. "The tall and the short ones who walked over the hill?" It came to him this would sound preposterous. "How did I get here?"

The elderly man was holding Dan's wrist.

"The tunnel through the pass is blocked and the railroad had another train waiting for us at this end. We had to walk over the hill and, somehow, you joined in. No one knew where you had come from. There, that is enough. After you have rested a while you can tell us all about it."

Tomorrow—A Sort of Adventure.

CLAIMS FASHION'S ATTENTION

The well-dressed woman gives her cachet to this smart frock of sand color flat crepe, with gathered panels at the front and sides. The blouse, with envelope collar and kimono sleeves, falls gracefully over a crushed girdle of self-material and, if preferred, the neck may be finished in plain oval outline without the addition of a collar. The style is suitable for the soft cottons as well as the crepes, medium size requiring 6⅝ yards 36-inch material.

Pictorial Review Dress No. 1580. Sizes, 34 to 50 inches bust. Price, 35 cents.

PARIS LIKES RIBBONS

Devotees of fashion are just as fond of the dainty ribbon-trimmed frocks as are the designers who create them. This lovely design in two shades of blue has a voile background with woven figures of satin. The slashed sleeves and inserted pockets are bound with fancy ribbon, while ribbon holds in the fullness at the sides, there being a sash for each side of the frock. Plain voile or silk may be used for the collar. Medium size requires 3½ yards 40-inch material, with eight yards of ribbon.

Pictorial Review Dress No. 1697. Sizes, 34 to 48 inches bust. Price, 35 cents.

Beauty Chats

by Edna Kent Forbes

WHEN YOU'RE CONVALESCING

A chat some time ago about things to improve one's good looks while convalescing from illness has brought me so many questions that I think I may repeat some of those suggestions today.

In the first place, you must consider the convalescence a golden period in which to do all the things you never have had time for before. There are books you've been wanting to read, letters you've meant to write but nver "gotten around to," fine sewing you've always intended doing—to be done when you're stronger. And meantime, every day there are little beauty services to yourself which you've no excuse for evading, and which you need all the more now that illness has pulled you down so. They are not hard, these beauty services.

If it's been a fever, you must have your hair cut or it will come out—if a bad fever, it may have to be shaved; but then boudoir caps must hide your head anyway, and you've weeks of privacy while the hair grows in to a somewhat becoming length. But every day you can rub your scalp with hair tonic, or have it rubbed if you are still too weak.

Every day, with a basin of hot water by your bed, you can soak thick face cloths, hold them over your skin (ten minutes of this), then rub the face and front of the neck with cold cream, wiping off what is left after the massage, and using toilet vinegar as astringent if you can't have a bit of ice wrapped in a little muslin. This is wonderfully rejuvenating to the skin. If there are wrinkles, use flesh-building cream, otherwise cleansing cream. Elbows and hands can be treated, too, and the nails rubbed daily with cream or oil.

Hands always grow younger after illness, did you know that? So do the feet, because they rest. If possible, have your feet pedicured during this rest period.

Proud Mother: Do not try to use peroxide on your little girl's hair. Children's light hair often darkens as they grow older, and it is more becoming in the new shade. You may use the juice of half of a lemon in a full basin of water as a rinse after the shampoo, or you may give the hair as many sun baths as possible. Either treatment will have a tendency to bleach.

John T. D.: Perspiring feet are usually too dry and need oil.

Take beauty treatment as you recuperate.

Massage them every night with olive oil, after the feet have been thoroughly washed in a basin of hot water to which a tablespoonful of boric acid has been added. Change your shoes and stockings every day.

Tomorrow—Ten Minutes at Bedtime.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

A reader friend has requested me to publish some good cheese dishes. In warm weather it is an excellent plan to use meat substitutes (such as eggs, cheese and beans). The following are all nourishing dishes:

Cheese Custard: Butter a baking dish and put in it a layer of bread which you have cut in thin slices and then into cubes about an inch square (no crusts). Sprinkle over this bread layer mild American cheese cut wafer thin, then dust with salt and pepper. Add another layer of bread in the same way, and again sprinkle with the cheese. Beat two eggs, add to them one pint of sweet milk, and pour this liquid over the cheese and bread. Bake for forty minutes in a moderate oven. It should look delicate and wavy between the soft, spongy bread. (In all, you will need one-half loaf of bread and one-half pound of cheese for this recipe.)

Corn-Cheese Souffle: Cook one tablespoon of chopped green sweet pepper in one tablespoon of melted butter for a few minutes. Then add one-fourth cup of flour and two cups of milk. Stir and cook till smooth. Now add one cup of finely chopped milk cheese, remove from fire, add one cup of cooked leftover corn, one-half teaspoon of salt and the yolks of three eggs, and fold in the three stiffly whipped egg whites. Turn the mixture into a buttered baking dish and bake for thirty-five to forty minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot.

Cheese-Tomato Souffle: Mix together in a saucepan one pint of stewed tomato (or a one-pint can of tomatoes), two tablespoons of butter, three tablespoons of grated mild cheese, three-fourths of a cup of cooked macaroni, one-half cup of stale bread crumbs and a pinch of mustard. Let boil up once or twice, remove from fire, cool, then stir in the yolks of three eggs and fold in the three stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn the mixture into a buttered baking dish and bake for thirty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot.

Cheese-Crab Ramekins: Make a thick cream sauce and add to it one can of crab meat (or two cups of flaked fresh crab meat previously cooked) and turn the mixture into buttered individual baking dishes. Sprinkle grated mild cheese thinly over the top, add a layer of stale bread crumbs, then add another layer of the grated cheese. Dot with bits of butter and slip into a moderate oven for fifteen to twenty minutes, to brown well.

This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Side Talks

by Ruth Cameron

WE NEED IT

Sometimes when I have had a specially hard time trying to put salt on the tale of a winged thought and imprison it in a cage of words, and rather suspect that the cage is empty after all—(it is the penalty of the writer that one never knows whether one's work is good or not in the definite way one knows about a cake or piece of embroidery)—I say aloud to myself what a letter-enemy once wrote to me: "Dear Ruth Cameron, you write the worst rot that is written."

And then again I smile, and remember what a letter-friend once wrote: "Some days you are not as good as others, and then I say to myself, 'Perhaps Ruth has a headache today'."

Wasn't that a sweet thing to think?

It has been a great comfort to me to know that there are understanding people like that in my unseen audience.

And it has been a great lesson to me in my reading of other people's work.

For instance, my favorite short story writer writes a story that is not quite up to the mark and I think perhaps she has a headache—or a heart ache.

Not As Written

Another way in which I have learned to make allowances is when I read a story and it has a peculiar abrupt, unreal sound. The transitions, instead of being smooth, are jumpy, and there are references that one does not understand. One wonders why an editor would buy a story like that. He didn't. He bought a good story very likely, and made it that way by cutting.

Why didn't the author object? Because the editor in that case would probably buy the stories of some other author who would not object. Even the top line authors have to stand cutting if the make-up of the magazine demands it. One of the best known authors in the country after one or two bitter experiences, did not go so far as to refuse to allow cutting, but did say, "If my child's hair got to be bobbed I want to do it myself."

He's Not a Moron

The same is true about newspaper articles, only more so. When one goes into a newspaper office to work, one is instructed to write the news story so that all the important details — who, when, where—are in the first paragraph Less important details are supposed to follow in the order of their importance, so that if necessary the end can be shut off. And it frequently is. Therefore, do not think the writer was a moron when his article ends with an abruptness that may sound idiotic. He minds more than you do.

Many people, I find, have an idea that the author of a story selects his illustrator and tells him what to draw. Far from it. The author doesn't know what the pictures are to be until he sees his story in print. I often wonder if the illustrator knows what the story is to be until he sees it in print. It is plain he does not always read it before he illustrates it.

Don't Blame the Author

In a recent magazine there is a picture of a girl heavily loaded with bracelets and necklaces. In the story she says, "You see I wear no jewels." A well known illustrator suggested that for a change the illustrator do his pictures first and then the writer write the story around them. I do not think it would be such a great change, do you?

Although the better magazines and newspapers have very careful proof readers, misprints will creep in and make the author seem to say something foolish.

When an author who usually writes sense breaks into idiocy, give him the benefit of the doubt, on this account.

This seems to be a plea for clemency on many grounds. Well, we need it. We have sins enough of our own to be responsible for without having the sins of editors and copy readers and illustrators credited to us.

Yesterday I told you about the danger of contracting anthrax from using non-sterilized shaving brushes made of bristles which have been taken from animals suffering with anthrax. I told you of the deaths of two men from anthrax in northern California recently. The brush which was used by one of the men was purchased in 1921 but had never been used until 1923.

Most shaving brushes are made of horse-hair or pig bristles from Chinese or other Oriental sources. If proper methods are used to sterilize them, there is no question about their being safe. However, because the germs of anthrax carbecause the germs of anthrax carry spores which may lie dormant for many years and then reproduce live germs, it is very difficult to devise a method of sterilization which will kill the organism without destroying the brush itself. The weekly bulletin from the California State Board of Health gives the following method, which has been given out by the United States Public Health Service:

"The brush should be soaked for four hours in a ten per cent solution of formaline (by formaline is meant a forty per cent solution of formaldehyde). The solution should be kept at a temperature of 110 degrees F. and the brush so agitated as to bring the solution into contact with all hair or bristles."

The following, I quote from the health bulletin also:

"The United States Public Health Service in 1918 conducted an extensive survey of all establishments in the United States manufacturing shaving brushes, only about twenty in number; and as a result, important regulations governing the sterilization of hair and bristles used in the manufacture of shaving brushes were added to the Interstate Quarantine Regulations.

"It is presumed that all shaving brushes manufactured in this country since these regulations went into effect, are reasonably safe for immediate usage without sterilization. However, a large number of shaving brushes manufactured before this regulation went into effect are still on the market; and since the anthrax organism may lie dormant for many years, there is a possibility that brushes purchased at the present time may be potential sources of danger.

"The United States Public Health Service in May, 1919, issued a circular letter to all state and local health authorities embodying the statement that the continued occurrence of cases of anthrax due to infected shaving brushes, led the bureau to believe that the regulation covering the sterilization of all brushes in trade channels was not being complied with. The service at that time advised that any brushes found in the market which do not bear the name or the trade mark of the manufacturer, should be regarded with suspicion and should be returned to the source from which they were secured, or should be disinfected."

So, comrades, sterilize your shaving brushes for you must shave every day, and sometimes twice a day if you are going to some particular place in the evening. You can't get by with the old excuse that it makes your face tender to shave so often, for that is not true. The skin becomes less tender with frequent shaving—my man says so, and he knows! If he didn't he wouldn't be my man, for if there is anything I can't bear it's an unshaved man.

PERCY ROCKEFELLER

Percy Rockefeller, nephew of John D., breaks into the limelight of publicity more infrequently than any other member of the famous oil family, in all probability, despite the fact that he is one of the richest men in the world.

P. A. ROCKEFELLER

Percy Rockefeller is a son of John D. Percy was born in New York City Feb. 27, 1878 and after he was graduated from Yale, class of 1900, entered the oil offices of his father in New York.

By judicious handling of the portion of the family riches that were his he has become a financial power in his own name. He is now a director of the National City bank of New York, the American international Corporation, the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Co., Western Union Telegraph Co., Second National Bank, N. Y., Provident Land Association, Air Reduction Co., Atlantic Fruit Co., Remington Arms Co., and several other industrial companies.

He has always taken an interest in the work of the Y. M. C. A. boys and other philanthropic work, having founded the American Association for the relief of French war orphans. He is an Episcopalian and a member of many exclusive athletic and country clubs.

EDWARD M. MORGAN

Fifty years of service in the U. S. postal service have just been completed by Edward M. Morgan, postmaster of New York City, recognized as the most difficult postal job in the service.

Morgan was sworn in as a letter carrier fifty years ago in the "Old Dutch church," New York, which was then used as the postoffice. It was used as a prison by the British in the Revolutionary war and by New York City as a postoffice from 1845 through the Civil war, up to 1875.

Morgan remained a letter carrier only five years. In 1878 he was transferred to clerical rank, and in the following year, after winning a competitive examination, he became a chief clerk in a branch station. He rose to the superintendency of some of the largest stations in the city and in 1889 became superintendent of city delivery, responsible for the distribution of mail through the entire city.

In 1897 he was made assistant postmaster and ten years later was appointed postmaster by President Roosevelt, who had followed his custom of seeking efficiency in choosing the man for the office. Morgan was reappointed by President Taft. After a vacation under the Democratic administration he was returned to office by President Harding on July 1, 1921. Only one other postmaster of New York has had the distinction of being appointed by three presidents.

PROF. ALEXANDER MEIKLEJOHN

Alexander Meiklejohn, who resigned recently as president of Amherst College at the request of the college trustees, has long been an outstanding figure and often a storm-center in the educational world.

DR. MEIKLEJOHN

Always he has preached the doctrine that what the world needs most is minds that can think clearly, and he has staunchly advocated, in a day of fads and electives, the old-fashioned system of "required" studies as being the curriculum tending best to produce such minds. Since the war, still maintaining his idea and strengthened in it by the catastrophe of 1914, he has declared, sometimes bitterly, that civilization cannot last with such soft thinking as the world has done in the past, and that the salvation of the human race depends upon education that really educates and that is not restricted to a favored few.

Dr. Meiklejohn became the head of Amherst in May, 1912, after serving for eleven years as dean of Brown university. At the time of his inauguration he was described as "the youngest college head, with the oldest ideas, in the country." At Brown he was called "the dean of philosophic view."

He loved teaching better than administering, and stipulated that although president of the college he should be allowed to conduct at least one class.

Dr. Meiklejohn was born in Rochdale, England, February 3, 1872. He came to American when eight years of age. He obtained an A. B. degree at Brown University in 1893. Four years later he joined the faculty of Brown as instructor of philosophy. He became dean of that institution in 1901.

GASOLINE SUBSTITUTE

A by-product of practically all Brazilian sugar mills, alcohol is coming into general use in that country as a substitute for gasoline as motor fuel.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Broadway's crop of summer shows started it. Ziegfeld, the Shubert boys and George White have gone back to nature—even to the beginning of nature where there was "nothing else but." And now Miss New York has taken up the fad—she's backingless. Tiny sandals, scarcely covering pink toes, adorn the feet. At the Ritz, along Broadway and even on Fifth avenue is visible evidence of a slump in the dress-manufacturers' market.

"Haven't we a perfect right?" Miss New York asks. But that doesn't answer what prompts Father Knickerbocker's sons to go back for their styles to the days when Little Old New York was young. At night in the theaters, and daily in the automats Wall Street knickerbockered brokers, brokers and barbers sporting the gay and festive woolies can be seen. Broadway looks almost like a golf course.

"West Point in the Bronx" is the title New York has given the new "military college" where this week 129 cadets will be made generals" and "captains" and lieutenants" in the army. On a hillside in the Bronx the Salvation Army has established a training school for officers. General Wong Jang, of Shanghai, China, is this year's honor student. The 'Army' requires a year's course in training before graduation. It is the only "military school" of its sort in the world.

There are some who sigh for the good old days." But the sighers are not Mr. and Mrs. New Yorker with a family.

Time was when, to enjoy a real walk and a dip in the surf, one had to travel to Atlantic City. Now New York has the new Coney Island. Gone are the days of the old Coney, with its roped and fenced-off beach, its noise-mad theater-front concessions, its bars and honkey tonks.

In its place is a new $3,000,000 board walk and a beach, built under the supervision of Mayor John F. Hylan, where, on Sundays and holidays, between 500,000 and 1,000,000 people play—a five-cent fare from Broadway.

Meet Charles Drescher, the "new-style cop."

H. B. Warner, "movie" and theatrical star, tells the story.

"I left home, forgot my purse, and didn't know I was without funds until I stepped from a taxi in front of the polo grounds, where I was taking my wife to see the Giants play.

"Policeman Drescher stepped up, attracted by the taxi driver's argument.

"'Can I help you, sir?' he asked.

"Then," says Warner, "he dug in his pocket, took out a ten dollar bill, paid my driver and gave me the price of two admission tickets."

"Just send the money to me at the station house," Warner says Drescher told him.

Drescher says he didn't know Warner.

"But he looked honest," the policeman explained.

Now Drescher has a season pass for all of Warner's attractions, in addition to returned ten dollar bill.

"New York, city of skyscrapers and bent fenders," may be a good joke on the stage.

But ask the merchants at the Wallabout and Jefferson markets.

"Two-thirds of all the produce we sell is raised either in Manhattan, the Bronx or on Long Island" they reveal. Two-thirds of New York's green stuff is raised within the sound of the subway's roar.

"And what town can beat that?" demand the city fathers.

All isn't tragedy with America's new sons and daughters, released from Ellis Island to the wonders of New York.

Taxi men at the Battery, where the immigration barges come in, tell some amusing tales.

"Those from the provinces of Southern Europe, who never saw a taxicab, see Americans hail passing busses and climb in. They do it, too—and then won't pay, thinking we are trying to rob them. Others want to give us a nickel or a dime for our trouble," the taxi men explain.

Billy Whiskers

by Frances Trego Montgomery

The man with the hose that Billy Whiskers had butted was told by the policeman to turn the water off.

But the man was so angry that he did not listen to what the policeman said, for he insisted on telling his tale of woe at the same time the old woman was telling her story. As he kept jumping out and sprinkling them all again and again, the policemen soon agreed with the woman that he was crazy, and laid on him to put him in the patrol wagon.

He kicked and fought and waved the hose around until they were all soaking wet, but at last one of the policemen got it away from him. With slight ceremony, the policemen picked him up bodily and put him in the patrol, though all the time he was trying to convince them that the fuss was all due to an old Billy goat that he was trying to turn the stream on, and that it was only an accident that the old woman got wet.

The police looked in every direction, but, not seeing any goats, they did not believe him and thought he was crazy. So they drove off, to hurry him to the police station. But what they thought was changed in the twinkling of an eye when they turned a corner and their prisoner nearly jumped out of the wagon in his excitement at seeing Billy and Nannie quietly walking down the street.

"There he is! There he is! The old brute that butted me and caused all this fuss!" he exclaimed, and insisted that they capture Billy and tie him to the back of the patrol before he killed anybody.

When the police saw the goat, they also noticed that his coat was dripping wet, they believed the man for the first time. They stopped the wagon and began to hunt under the seat for a rope with which to tie Billy to the back of the patrol. Not finding it there, they glanced about for something else. One of them spied a woman in a back yard hanging up clothes, and he said, "I'll go borrow a piece of her clothesline."

(Tomorrow you will see what Billy planned to do when they tried to catch him.)

WHEN GEARS WON'T STAY MESHED

Shifting Forks May Be Sprung by Inconsiderate Handling

After a car has seen long service and sometimes before this, it occasionally happens that trouble develops from failure of the transmission gears to remain in engagement until neutralized by the operator. For instance, second speed may be thrown in, on a steep hill, but before the need of using it is past, the gears may slip out of engagement, of their own accord, leaving the engine racing and the car out of engine control. Under normal conditions, when the shifting lever is moved into one of the speed positions, the sliding gear is shifted into mesh with the stationary gear concerned, by a fork, until their teeth engage completely and, when this position is reached, a retaining device automatically acts to hold them precisely in this correct relation. This latter is spoken of as the "gear lock," but it is not positive in its action, as this would prevent shifting back to neutral. It is merely a stationary spring pressed plunger, the V point of which, when the correct operative position is reached, enters a V-shaped slot in a slide, which moves with the gears that are being shifted. Little force is required to unseat the plunger in the slot and unlatch the gears. If the shifting fork is worn or bent, so that it does not move the gear fully into position, the lock does not act and there is nothing to retain the mesh and if the plunger becomes stuck in its disengaged position, if its point is worn off round or if its spring has become weakened, there is insufficient locking force to be proof against unmeshing tendencies and the gears may slip apart. In case one or both of the two gears have become badly chipped or burred, so that their tooth contact is no longer true and even, pressure may develop tending to throw them out of mesh, when heavy loads are being carried. It sometimes happens too, that play develops between the gear shafts and their bearings, particularly end play, which permits a slight "shucking" back and forth of the sliding gear shaft and its gears, with the result that the locking device fails to hold and disengagement occurs. By removing the transmission cover and the shifting housing, it should be possible to inspect the gear faces, to check up the completeness of the engagement on each speed, to examine the locking plungers for spring pressure, freedom of action, etc., and to determine whether there is excessive end or radial play in the shafts.

STARTER MOTOR CAUSES FIRE

G. P. C. asks: What, in your opinion, was the cause of a short circuit and subsequent fire which occurred on a ——— car when, during the cranking operation, the starter-gear jammed and the engine did not turn over. I wish to prevent this from occurring again. How can this be accomplished?

Answer: In the normal operation of a starting-motor, for a fraction of a second until it begins to turn over, an enormous current flows through it, but, as soon as its armature begins to rotate, it acts as a generator and produces a voltage which is in opposition to that of the battery and limits the current flow, so that, when normal armature speed is attained, the current is of safe volume. On the other hand, if the gears are jammed, so that the motor armature cannot rotate, no counter electromotive force is developed and the resistance of the motor windings is so low that the battery sends nearly its full short circuit current through them, so long as the circuit remains closed. This may be such excessive volume as to produce arcs at the brushes or at any imperfect circuit connections or to heat the latter red hot or even to inflame any oil soaked combustible insulation that is involved. By letting up on the starter pedal the instant that the failure of the motor to rotate is noted, serious results should be obviated.

WEAK WATER CIRCULATION

H. S. asks: Why is it that water starts to boil in the radiator of my ——— car, while it is not too warm for one to bear his hand on it. I have cleaned out the radiator with lye.

Answer: This looks like a case of poor circulation. Presumably the water in the engine jackets reaches the boiling point and some of this passes through the upper connection into the top of the radiator, in a boiling condition, but as there is little circulation down through the radiator, the average temperature of the latter rises but little. Your car has pump circulation and we suggest that you detach the upper rubber connection at the radiator, speed up the engine for a moment and see if a full stream of water is expelled at considerable velocity. If not, you had better inspect the pump to see that its impeller really turns and renew the rubber connections if they are old or there is a possibility that they are closed up inside. If they have become very limp, they may be suspected. Possibly, although you have tried to clean it out, the passages of your radiator may still be partly obstructed. With both its connections detached, water supplied to the filler opening, from a hose, should run out the lower opening very freely in a full stream.

"GOVERNMENT WHEAT SELLING ORGANIZATION NEEDED," SAYS FARMERS' COUNCIL LEADER

"The only thing that will save the wheat farmers of the United States is a government corporation or similar government agency to assure wheat growers their legitimate costs of production for wheat economically grown. We have tried practically everything else. The United States Grain Growers, Inc., and farmers' pools have not succeeded." This is the frank assertion of Benj. C. Marsh, managing director of the Farmers' National Council.

"You can quote me as saying that granting more credit to the farmers to get them farther into debt is inhuman. The farmers are already at least $5,000,000,000 too much in debt. What they need is a ladder of fair prices to help them climb out," says Marsh.

His plan would be for the government corporation to buy up wheat at a price higher than the markets, and then sell it when the market got up. Such a plan is embodied in the Norris-Sinclair bill which will be reported into congress next fall, he says; this bill would permit the government to appropriate up to $100,000,000 for purchase of wheat from farmers and farmers' co-operatives.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY SHOWS SUSIE

"Susie! Oh, Susie!" called Mrs. Littletail, the rabbit lady, from the door of her burrow or underground house, one morning.

"Yes, mother! What is it?" asked Susie, who was playing at making sand pies in the back yard.

"Go over in the field and bring me some cabbage for your father's supper," called Mrs. Littletail.

"All right, mother, I'm going!" answered Susie, for she was very glad to do things about the house, even though she had to stop playing at making sand pies.

Over into the field hopped little Susie. She twinkled her pink nose as nearly like Uncle Wiggily as she could, and looked about for cabbage.

"Here's some," said Susie to herself, and she was in such a hurry to get back to her sand pies that she nibbled off some of the first big green leaves that she saw, and, with the stem of two of the leaves in her mouth, back home she hopped.

"Here is the cabbage for daddy's supper," called Susie to her mother. Mrs. Littletail looked at the big, broad green leaves just once, and then she laughed and said:

"Why, Susie, that isn't cabbage! You have brought home some leaves of the burdock plant. That isn't good for daddy, though Dr Possum sometimes uses it for medicine. Go back and get me the cabbage."

"Oh, I thought this was cabbage," sighed Susia, and she was rather sorry she had been in such a hurry. Back to the field she hopped. "I made a mistake by taking too large a leaf before," she said to herself. "This time I'll nibble off some smaller leaves."

So she nibbled some smaller leaves and took them home. But when Mrs. Littletail had looked at them she laughed again and said:

"That isn't cabbage, Susie! This time you have picked some dandelion leaves. I thought you knew more about growing things! I will go for the cabbage myself, and you must hop over to Uncle Wiggily's and ask him to show you how to know cabbage and other growing things that are good for rabbits to eat."

"All right, mother," answered Susie. Going to Uncle Wiggily's was more fun than making sand pies.

"Well, Susie, what's the matter now?" asked the dear old rabbit gentleman as he sat on the front porch of his hollow stump bungalow. "Has your dollie lost her eyes, or is she splashing water out of her bath tub?"

"Neither one, Uncle Wiggily," answered Susie. "But I have come over to have you show me how to tell cabbage from the burdock plant," and Susie related what had happened.

"Come to the field with me and I'll show you how, as I showed Sammie how to dig his underground burrow," offered the rabbit uncle. And soon Susie was learning the difference between cabbage and other plants that are not good for rabbits to eat. Uncle Wiggily told her how to notice the leaves, the stems and the way in which cabbage grows in a round head like a balloon.

"Do you think you will know cabbage when you see it next time?" asked Mr. Longears, when he was ready to hop back to his bungalow.

"Oh, yes, indeed, thank you," answered Susia. "But what is this funny, fuzzy brown plant growing here, Uncle Wiggily? Is it good to eat?' and Susie pointed to something like a brown dusting brush in the grass.

Uncle Wiggily gave one look and then he whispered:

"Come away quickly, Susie! That is the tail of the Fuzzy Fox. He must be asleep or he would have heard us or seen us before this. Come away quickly, before he awakens and nibbles our ears. Indeed, the tail of a Fox is not good for rabbits, any more than burdock is. But you were a good little girl to use your sharp eyes so well. Always look twice before you pick anything to eat in the woods or fields. Now make no noise!"

So Susie and Uncle Wiggily hopped away so softly that they did not awaken the Fox. And when he did open his eyes he yawned and stretched as he said:

"Well, I guess there will be no ear nibbles for me today. Uncle Wiggily isn't coming!" And he never knew that two rabbits had been so close to him.

After this lesson Susie had no trouble bringing home cabbage for her father's supper. And if the lemon doesn't hide in the ice box where the sugar bowl can't find it to turn it into a strawberry short cake. I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the trap.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

THACKERAY A FAN

In "Knuckles and Gloves," a chronicle of prize fighting from 1740 to the present time, Bohun Lynch quotes a unique poem which Thackeray contributed to "Punch," venting his indignation over the police interference at the crucial point in the fight between Tom Sayers and the Benicia boy. The last stanza reads:

"Alas! e'en in those brighter days
We still had Beaks and Blues—
Still, canting rogues, their mud to fling
On self-defence and on the ring,
And fistic arts abuse,
And 'twas such varmint had the power
The champion's fight to stay,
And leave unsettled to this hour
The honors of the day!"

I was taking a short jaunt the other day in a purple and pink taxicab because it was too hot to walk. I have always been interested in taxicab meters, and have always, in my weak way, tried to figure them out. I have taken the same trip several times and the charge is always different. This time I determined to ask the driver. "I wish you would explain," I said, "why the charge for this trip is always different, even though the rate cards are always the same. I wish you would also tell me why you always start with a charge of 20 cents showing. In fact, I wish you would explain that clock to me in its entirety. I do not ask you from suspicion, but merely to be informed." The driver gave me what I consider to be about the best scientific answer I ever received. He gave me a sad look, and said: "Mister, if I could explain a taxicab meter, if I had brains enough to understand it myself, I would not be driving a taxicab. I would have a large brokerage office down in Wall street."

MARCEL'S APOLOGUE

Those who write should know that the paper on which their writings are printed is not made by mere writing.

The envious man begrudgeth that in which his neighbor has succeeded. He really does not know how hard it is to act in the movies.

Publish not men's secret faults. They never are published if there is enough money.

Reveal not to a friend every secret you possess unless it is about another friend.

From Our London Correspondent

Old Richmond Temple, our faithful London correspondent, sends in the following this week:

Latry, chef at the Savoy Hotel, makes women touch their toes after his best efforts at cookery. He is the regular recipient of compliments from the fairer and weaker sex. Perhaps the strongest encomium he has received was noticed the other day, when a fashionably-dressed American woman, a trifle inclined to embonpoint, came out of the Savoy Hotel restaurant, stood on the doorstep, feet close together and solemnly bent down and touched her toes. She smiled contentedly as she straightened up, and then quietly sauntered out on the balcony overlooking the Thames. Presumably she was satisfied with the results of M. Latry's luncheon effort.

THE GREAT COMEDY

The world's a comedy, and we're the fools.
The curtain rises! Hold, Thalia rules!
The gods all in the orchestra attend,
Applaud the farce the playful Muse has penned!
The clowns perform, and strut the creaking boards;
Fawn the ambitious on the pompous lords;
The love-sick moan, the enemy plays friend;
The miser hoards the gold that others spend;
The poet starves that he may scribble rhyme;
The rich thief's praised, the poor crook jailed for crime;
Proud women deck their necks and hands and ears
With gewgaws costing men the toil of years—
And so the play of paradox en-plods,
While at our silly antics laugh the gods.

BIRDMEN RARELY VICTIMS OF FEAR

Most Accidents Arise From Nervous Exhaustion, Surgeon Claims

LONDON, July 25.—Fear is practically never responsible for airplane accidents, according to Major Graeme Anderson, consulting surgeon to the British Air Force.

The chief cause of accidents to young pilots has been rather nerve exhaustion than fear, he contends.

Anderson says that he has found from experience and from the confessions of young pilots that fear never exerts itself in the first few flights, the pupils being too occupied in watching the various details and tricks of flying.

He advises people who go flying in commercial machines to take back seats, which have been proved to be the safest positions, and suggests that a method should be devised whereby in the event of fire the pilot would be able to release the cabin, the passengers dropping to earth by a parachute arrangement attached to the cabin.

GIRL AD AGENT GETS HONOR

Will Represent Women On Board Abroad

KATHERINE H. MAHOOL

BALTIMORE, July 25.—Katherine H. Mahool, attractive young Baltimore woman, will be the first af her sex to represent in Europe a large and important organization of American professional women.

At the recent Atlantic City convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, she was selected by the women's advertising clubs of the country to represent them on the executive board of the international body. That was the highest honor which could be conferred upon a woman in the advertising profession and it was the second time she had received it.

So next year, when the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World meet in London, she will be the official representative of all of the women in her profession in America.

Miss Mahool is very modest. She declares she has no message to give the world and expects to have none. She is not an evangelist nor reformer—but those who have watched her career in Baltimore realize that neverthless she always does have a message—the message of good, hard-headed common sense—and she is a worker.

VETS' BUREAU TO BE TRANSFERRED

Plans Worked Out for Farly Decentralization of All Activities

By H. K. REYNOLDS
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Plans for the complete decentralization of the activities of the United States veterans bureau by 1926, thus reducing the bureau's work in Washington to the administrative control of soldier relief branches throughout the country, have been worked out by Director Frank T. Hines, it has been learned officially.

Rehabilitation and hospitalization of veterans who need special care must be accomplished before the decentralization program can be carried into effect, but officials are hopeful that the next three years will see the bureau's ordinary insurance and compensation divisions transferred to some other government department and placed upon a permanent basis.

Will Fix Compensation

As one of the first and most important steps in carrying out plans for assuring adequate care for veterans as long as they are in need of government assistance, Hines soon will establish a permanent compensation rating for more than 150,000 veterans who were partially disabled. Not only will the order effect a big saving in the administration expenses of the bureau, but it will make it possible for these beneficiaries to receive their monthly checks without further delay for all time to come.

The placing of these veterans on a permanent pension basis will necessitate the expenditure of approximately $75,000,000 a year in amounts ranging from $8 to $75 a month.

Hines' decision was reached in part through the efforts of the American Legion, which objected to the rules requiring partially disabled men, even though their disability was permanent, to be re-examined every three months.

Official announcement of the new order is expected within a few days.

Get Permit Before Starting Brush Fire

cials who have been penetrating the back country districts during the past few weeks. In some instances small blazes have been put out by rangers who have appeared in the fire localities just in time.

With government workers combating the fire menace and with the county fire aides watching carefully at the base of the great mountain range, the public is called upon to co-operate and do everything possible that may be prevention of fire, especially in view of the fact that the loss of valuable woodlands and watersheds cannot be estimated in dollars and cents.

Is Worst "Evil"

The small brush fire in the back yard that spreads at the arrival of a fanning breeze and threatens to jump into adjoining property is one of the worst "evils" the county has to face, according to Mr. Flintham. Neglect in taking the necessary precautions as printed on the county permits is the trouble-maker, as borne out by the court complaints. "If the general public realizes the seriousness and the damage that may be done, each person burning brush will not only obtain a permit, but will follow out the instructions to the letter," says the county fire warden.

Drilling Oil Well At Gateway to City brought in, and it is not at all improbable it will be a gasser.

Should a gas field be developed in the hills southeast of Glendale, both this city and Los Angeles would benefit greatly from the factories it would attract. And gas supply for heat is almost an essential in Southern California.

Sees Samples

An oil writer yesterday visited the rig and saw some of the samples brought up by the bailer. It was his conclusion that gas was more noticeable than the traces of oil, the dried out shale giving evidence of gas. However, little could be determined as water stands in the hole for hundreds of feet and conceals any evidence of gas pressure.

Should an oil well be brought in within the next two or three weeks it will create more excitement in that particular section than the earthquake did. And if a gasser blows in there will be about as much excitement as evidenced by the Italians when Mt. Etna cut loose.

Ex-Soldiers Strive To Keep Up Courage

all the burden on these staunch friends when there is room for so many more?

It is very easy to lose interest in life, remaining in one place, looking at the same things, hearing the same sounds, day after day, month after month, and, for some of them, year after year.

Think it over. If you are talented in any way or can think of some friends who are, get in touch with some one at the Soldiers' Home Annex Hospital. The patients will do the rest.

The long, long list of the veterans' suffering with tuberculosis is one of the tragic chapters of the war, and a chapter of prolonged suffering and intense worry unparalleled even by the shocks and wounds of combat.

The very best which the nation can do in alleviating this suffering will be none too much.

Building A Great Bigger Los Angeles Industry

To meet the growing demand for its products, The IMPERIAL COTTON MILLS COMPANY of Los Angeles must double its present capacity.

The tremendous and immediate success of the first 20,000 spindle unit has proven Los Angeles to be the logical textile milling center of the West.

The Pacific Coast annually consumes over 150,000,000 yards of cotton cloths which are largely supplied from Eastern mills at high transportation cost. To serve this established market IMPERIAL COTTON MILLS COMPANY is manufacturing, from Imperial and Salt River Valley cotton, staple cloths which defy competition both in quality and price.

The mill's entire output of 14,000,000 yards per annum is entirely sold in advance. Over 500 persons are employed operating 20,000 spindles with nearly 600 looms. Yet present machinery and equipment can produce but a small percentage of the goods required in this immediate territory.

In order to provide for the new buildings, new equipment and necessary working capital to double mill production, the Company is now offering a limited portion of its

8% Cumulative Preferred Stock

Price $100 per share. Fully Paid and Non-assessable. Participating up to 12% with the Common Stock. Convertible into Common Stock at $125.

On the basis of present earnings, annual net profits from doubled production are estimated at more than 2½ times the amount necessary for annual cash dividends of 12% on all outstanding Preferred and Common Stock.

Every Southern California Investor Will want to share in the large and dependable profits of this great local industry. Over $500,000 of Preferred Stock has been sold during the last five days.
